Crossing America.
Smoot, by Acclamation.
A Lady Quotes Schiller.
Bonfils Has a Mammoth.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, August 22.

THIS IS written on the Union Pacific "Los Angeles Limited, No. 8," on the way from California to New York.

Since last night the train has crossed California from the Pacific, running over Santa Fe tracks to Barstow, then on Union Pacific tracks through Nevada, and on through Utah. When the train arrives at Salt Lake City at 5:15 p. m., this copy will go to the telegraph office, and the writer will stop off to call upon Senator Smoot, whom the Republican party in Utah has wisely renominated by acclamation.

FORTUNATE UTAH is represented by a man whose mind is concentrated on UTAH and THE UNITED STATES.

He does not worry about Esquimaux, ladies and gentlemen of Cape Town, Czecho-Slovakians, or the British or French. He believes in protection, because that means better living for the men and women of Utah and all of the United States.

The atmosphere, invigorating five thousand feet up, nullifies the effects of hot weather.

Besides the tracks you see men walking beside their teams that haul heavy loads of farm products. These build this country, and finance it, although they never saw a stock ticker.

AN INTELLIGENT lady, old-fashioned, with a tall young daughter, new-fashioned, came to our stateroom, and says:

You welcome such an intelligent visitor. She quotes Martin Luther, and Goethe, and Schiller's "Du Bist Immer Was Du Bist," "Thou Art Always What Thou Art." She rebukes young people of our day, unsuccessfully trying to be something they are not.

SHE IS A widow, her name is Mrs. Elizabeth Beauchell, and she lives in Beverly Hills, while her daughter attends the University of Southern California.

The daughter does not quite know what she will do when she leaves the university, teach school perhaps, but she is quite certain that she will NOT marry.

She is mistaken about that?

SAD NEWS from Reno, a little to the left where Nevada joins California. Two of the best Reno drinking places are closed today. A cruel government taking out all the fixtures, and the weather, unusually warm, calls for liquid refreshments.

Imagine the indignation of ladies and gentlemen, breaking the inconvenient chains of marriage and forbidden to break, as they choose, regulations established by constitutional law.

However, other places are open.

IN DENVER, to the southeast, hundreds of scientists are gathered today. You will learn from them about chemistry. Col. Bonfils, owner of the Denver Post, known to his friends as the Colorado Marcus Aurelius, always carries on his newspaper the line "First in Everything."

He is delighted to learn from the distinguished Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of New York's American Museum of Natural History, now in Denver, that Colorado has the finest mammoth skeleton in the world.

The Denver Post shows Prof. Osborn with Dr. Walter Granger, Mr. Figgins, head of the Denver Museum, and the jaw bone of the mammoth. He could have bitten all three in two at one bite.

This mammoth, biggest of the extinct elephant family, was found in Nebraska, but Col. Bonfils says it was undoubtedly on its way to Denver, its highly developed brain proves this. Its full name is archidiskodon meridonalis nebraskensis.

INDIANS HAVE been praying steadily for a month begging the "Great Spirit" to make the salmon come up the river as usual. Something had mysteriously delayed their coming, and starvation threatened the Indians in the coming winter.

But the prayers were successful, the "Great Spirit" said whatever was necessary to send the salmon. Now they are rushing up the river, their silver fins flashing. The Indians gather them in thousands at the foot of Kettle Falls.

Dried, the salmon carry the Indians through the cold winter months. Incidentally, salmon scientifically prepared in tins, offer a most important, economical, and palatable food for white people.

THIS UNPLEASANT news item sent by the International News Service, comes from New York:

"The murdered bodies of two more men bearing the trade mark of the national murder syndicate were found today."

Our word "thug" comes from a murder organization that terrorized India for a long time. Our word "assassin" comes from the name of Hassan, contemporary of Omar the Tent Maker, who made assassination his business.

Among certain savages, as the "American Weekly" tells you, you travel in danger of the "leopard men" that wear skins from the real leopard, spring out and tear you to pieces because they enjoy it.

If bootleg crime really has produced a "national murder syndicate" it is time for the authorities to do something about it.

SON-IN-LAW FINDS TWO DEAD IN HOME

Failure to Open Store Reveals Domestic Tragedy

John Winkler, 63, retired machinist, of McKees Rocks, today shot and killed his wife, Josephine, 57, and then killed himself, according to a Coroner's report.

The two were found dead in their apartment in the rear of the grocery which they conducted at 107 Ella street, McKees Rocks, by Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, Republican nominee for the State Legislature, and Winkler's son-in-law.

It was in the same building that Westwood's daughter, Clara, 14, fatally shot herself, early this year.

SUMMONS AID

Bread and rolls, stuffed between the screen and door of the store, found by the man delivering milk led to the discovery of the tragedy. When the milkman found the baker's supply had not been removed, and failing to get a response to his knocks, he summoned Squire Westwood, occupant of the second floor.

Squire Westwood, failing to obtain entrance to the Winkler apartment, peered through a window and saw the body of Mrs. Winkler in bed. Then he raised a window and climbed in.

BODIES FOUND

In bed, dressed in night clothing, Mrs. Winkler was found shot through the right cheek. Winkler, fully clothed, except for shoes, was sitting in an arm chair, in an adjoining room, with a bullet wound in his forehead. Nearby lay an automatic pistol.

Westwood told County Detective B. F. Kunning, that neither he nor his wife and three children heard any shots during the night. Kunning said the s ooting evidently occurred four five hours before the bodies were found.

Miss Harding, Pittsburgh film favorite with whom an ancient, two-cylinder motorcar she didn't know how to stop ran away in Alhambra, Cal., as she sat demurely at the wheel while the cameras whirred. PROFIT-TAKING CHECKS RISE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The stock market ran into heavy profit taking in the late trading today and gave up a good portion of an early advance which had carried the list into new high ground for the current recovery.

Huge blocks of stock were absorbed at the start with quotations pushing steadily forward under leadership of Steel, Telephone and the big railroads. The advances attracted selling on every upward surge and the list finally gave way and dropped back in the last hour.

The commodity markets strengthened up. Cotton moved up a little to a new high for the season. Wheat was well supported after scoring a 1-cent gain and then forfeiting half of the advance.

Homesteaders Welcome Olympic Mermaids

Lenore Kight and Anna Mae Gorman, Homestead's Olympic swimmers, came home today to the greetings and plaudits of the home folk.

A delegation of several hundred residents of Homestead, headed by a band, met the girls at the Pennsylvania Railroad station at 8:30 a. m. The young swimmers had arrived earlier, but few were aware of it until they had had breakfast in the station dining room.

"It's wonderful. We had a wonderful time. All this is great."

HITLER DEFI DECLARED FUTILE

Von Papen Insists Threats Won't Save Doomed Nazis

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Disturbing threats of reprisals against the government for death sentences imposed on five Fascists convicted of political murder were answered today by an announcement that the government would not stand for political pressure but decide solely on the basis of justice whether to grant pardons.

This statement was issued after Adolph Hitler, leader of the Fascist National Socialists, had assured the five condemned men:

"The freedom of each of you from this minute on is a question of our honor."

The Hitler followers were condemned to death at Beuthen yesterday after they had been convicted of killing a Communist. In government circles it was said that no one did the five men or the Nazi movement worse service

POISON IN FOOD KILLS FIVE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Dr. Asher Harris, assistant director of health, announced today John C. Callahan, his wife and three children were killed by poison placed in their food from an outside source. The deaths had previously been ascribed to tainted food.

Dr. Harris said enough poison was placed in wild cherry preserves and pancakes eaten by the family Sunday morning to wipe out the entire family of 11. Three children, Cecelia, 8; Virginia, 6, and Kenneth, 15 months, died shortly after the breakfast, and Callahan and his wife died yesterday.

Two other children, George, 15, and Dorothy, 4, are not expected to recover. Four children in the family did not partake of the breakfast and escaped. Analysis of the food by the City Department of Health revealed presence of the poison.

GIRL, ESCORT DROWN AT OAKMONT

Identify Canoe Victims As Duquesne Senior And Fiancee

A young law student and his sweetheart drowned in the Allegheny River at Oakmont last midnight while the strains of soft music and the laughter of hundreds of happy dancing couples echoed over the river from a nearby roadhouse.

They had paddled their canoe from the Sylvan Canoe Club at Verona up the river and halted near the roadhouse to hear the music.

GIRL WEDGED IN BOAT

Then the canoe overturned. Possibly a barge struck it. The girl was wedged in one end of the boat, the law student was thrown into the water. He was seen sinking twice.

Unofficial identification indicated he was Walter Davidson, 24, senior in Duquesne University's law school. She was Dorothy Soeder, 19, of Terre Haute, Ind. A friend said today was her birthday.

Davidson's home was in Terre Haute. In Pittsburgh he roomed at 510 Lincoln avenue, East End. Recently having passed his junior year at Duquesne, he won a position in Westinghouse's patent department in East Pittsburgh.

Miss Soeder came to Pittsburgh Sunday to visit Davidson. At the rooming house it was said he planned to return with her to Terre Haute next week for a visit.

PURSE CLUE TO NAMES

Her purse, left in the canoe club at Verona, led to the identity. It contained a pass on the Pennsylvania Railroad. The pass indicated her father was a clerk on the St. Louis division.

One end of the canoe was cracked, which gave rise to a report of the collision.

First report of the drowning came to police from the Sea Scouts, who have a station nearby. They said a crew from a Hillman Coal and Coke Company boat had reported seeing a man struggling in the water. Police are dragging the river for Davidson's body.

TWO SHIPS IN AIR RACE TO OSLO

8 in Flying Family's Craft on Easy-Stage Trip to London

Associated Press.

Three airplanes, carrying 12 fliers, two of them children, were speeding towards Europe from America today.

Two of the planes were staging an impromptu race to Oslo, Norway.

FLYING FAMILY OFF

Later in the morning George Hutchinson and his flying family—himself, his wife and two daughters, Kathryn, 8, and Janet Lee, 6—with crew of four more, left Floyd Bennett Field for St. John, N. B., the first stop scheduled on a 4,200-mile, easy-stage flight to London.

William Ulbrich, Dr. Leon Pisculli and Edna Newcomer planned to leave tomorrow on a non-stop flight to Rome by way of Florence—where Miss Newcomer is expected to leap out in a parachute to honor Florence Nightingale, the nurse.

J. A. Mollison, Scotch flier, who completed the first solo flight from Europe to New York last Sunday, waited only favorable weather at Roosevelt Field to start a return solo flight. His Moth plane, termed a flying gas tank, had been given a quick overhauling.

TO DEMONSTRATE SAFETY

If both Mollison and Ulbrich start tomorrow there will be five

JOHN D. MAY SEE ILL DAUGHTER

HARMON, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Mrs. Rockefeller arrived today from Chicago where they went last week to the bedside of Mr. Rockefeller's sister, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who is critically ill.

No reason was given for Mr. Rockefeller's return, but there was some speculation that he might have come to take his father, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., to Chicago.

After leaving the train here the Rockefellers left by automobile in the direction of the elder Rockefeller's estate at Pocantico Hills, Tarrytown.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, whose resistance to an incurable malady has amazed her physicians, continued to cling to life today.

Ohio Vote for Hoover In Hearst Papers Poll

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Ohio's 26 electoral votes today moved into the Hoover column in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

This was the outstanding development in the canvassing and tabulation of 11,133 new postcard ballots received at the national poll headquarters in Washington. Today's additions brought the total vote tabulated to date to 75,983. These divide:

HOOVER 28,177
ROOSEVELT 47,806

This shows a percentage division of 63 for Roosevelt to 37 for Hoover, as against 64 per cent for Roosevelt and 36 per cent for Hoover in the tabulation published Sunday morning.

Divided by sexes, Hoover now has 17,825 men and 10,352 women,

WALKER HOLDS TAXI CHARGE 'RIDDLED' IN HOT FIGHT

MAYOR DEFEATS URGE TO 'SOCK' SEABURY

BULLETIN.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Paul Block, newspaper publisher, who "cut" Mayor James J. Walker in on a stock market transaction, testified today at the ouster hearing before Gov. Roosevelt that he never had had a business contract with the City of New York.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ALBANY, Aug. 23.—Mayor James J. Walker and his counsel were convinced today that they have riddled the first of the Seabury charges which they have attacked through defense witnesses at the removal hearing before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That charge had to do with the allegation that the Mayor accepted $26,000 in securities from J. A. Sisto & Co., brokers interested in taxicab securities, and thereafter sponsored taxicab legislation desired by this concern.

When the hearing was resumed this afternoon, the Mayor renewed his attack on Samuel Seabury's 15 "conclusions," in the firm belief that he can prove through witnesses that they are all without foundation.

DEFENSE CALLS LOREE

Lenor F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, and one of the foremost capitalists in the country, was called to the stand as a defense witness when the hearing began today.

Mayor Walker become so indignant at Seabury yesterday over the taxicab matter that he remarked to one of his legal aides, John J. Glynn, that he had difficulty in refraining from "socking" Seabury.

Walker is beginning to show some signs of the strain he is undergoing in this spectacular battle for his political life. "Jimmy" has lost much of his easy nonchalance and, instead of manifesting an inclination to "wise crack," he has donned fighting armor to battle it out with Seabury to the last ditch.

The Mayor had a sharp verbal encounter with Seabury when he was refuting one of the main charges against him by pointing out that neither he nor his administration had power to grant a monopoly of the taxicab business in New York City to the Parmalee Company.

It was in Parmalee securities that Sisto was alleged to have been interested.

TAXI CHARGE DENIED

Walker declared that while a bill had been introduced in the Legislature to permit a taxicab monopoly in New York City, it had been defeated through the opposition of his administration.

Three members of the Board of Taxicab Control of New York City testified that the Mayor had never suggested any favoritism for the Parmalee or any other company.

The Mayor is also planning to summon a "surprise witness." He is William Wagner, confidant of the late Senator Bernard Downing. Wagner, it is hinted, will blast away at another of the Seabury charges, namely, that on the day prior to the signing of the Equitable bus franchise, the Mayor received a $10,000 letter of credit, subsequently augmented by a $3,000 overdraft, paid for by J. Allan Smith, one of the Equitable promoters.

The letter of credit was obtained a day or so before Mayor Walker sailed for Europe in August, 1927. Wagner, it is understood, will testify that the letter of credit had nothing to do with the Equitable company.

BAZZANO HUNT SNARLED BY 2 MORE DEATHS

Body Taken From N. Y. River; Second Man Found in Newark

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Brooklyn homicide detectives, who are searching for the gang that murdered John Bazzano, reputed boss of the massacred Volpe brothers, today were confronted with one more, if not two, gang killings.

From the East River was recovered the weighted body of a well-dressed man, his chin gashed. He was about 40, blonde, 6 feet tall and weighed 220.

SEEK VICTIM'S RECORD

And over in Newark one Tito Furato was found slain. Newark police asked Pittsburgh authorities whether Furato was known there in crime circles.

Brooklyn detectives wondered whether either murder was connected with the slaying of Bazzano, whose body was found in Brooklyn two weeks after Johnny, Arthur and Jim Volpe, booze racketeers, had been shot down in his Wylie avenue coffee shop.

Pittsburgh sleuths and Brooklyn detectives were anxious to find "Big Mike" Spinelli, who in Pittsburgh yesterday was charged with the murder of the Volpes and is believed to have had a hand in the Bazzano job.

HINTS KLINE DEFEAT

In Jefferson Market Court today eight men were to be arraigned today as public enemies. Two—Michael Russo and Carl Spallino—are Pittsburghers. All eight were rearrested after they and six others were discharged as suspects in the Bazzano slaying last week.

It was in Jefferson Market Court that their attorney, crafty Sam Liebowitz, "mouthpiece" of the underworld, complained:

"I hear Mayor Kline is running again in Pittsburgh and when he's beaten I suppose they'll blame it on these clients of mine."

ATLANTA, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—J. F. Tuohy, of Olean, N. Y., hopped off for Birmingham, Ala., today to lead a field of 27 entrants in the Cord handicap derby, which will wind up at the national air races in Cleveland.

The fliers will stop at Birmingham and then take off for Jackson, Miss., which will be their stopping place for the night.

The takeoff was arranged on a handicap basis, slower planes leaving ahead of the faster ships, and the first ship into Birmingham will be the winner of the leg.

PITTSBURGH GIRLS FLY

Following the leader by 1 minute and 48 seconds was Fred Dorset, of Augusta, Ga. Helen McCloskey, of Pittsburgh, was the third to take the air, 4 minutes and 12 seconds after Tuohy hopped off. Next came Helen Richey, of Pittsburgh.

Dorset is leading the derby so far with 391.5 points. Huffman is second with 259, Tuohy third with 256.35, and Miss McCloskey fourth with 171.

planes with 16 fliers going eastward over the Atlantic at the same time, the highest number since mechanical flying began.

The Hutchinson crew consists of Peter Redpath, navigator; Joseph Ruff, motor engineer; G. J. Altfilisch, radio operator, and Norman W. Alley, cinema cameraman.

The first scheduled stop, St. John, is 511 miles from New York. Unless weather conditions are bad the expedition plans to reach Labrador on the second day, Greenland on the third day, Iceland on the fourth day and London on the fifth day.

The purpose of the flight is to demonstrate the safety of trans-Atlantic flying over the air mail route which has been charted by the government.

Of the other Oslo fliers, Lee, 24, has had about nine years' experience in the air but has done no ocean flying. Bockhon, four years his senior, began his flying career with the Norwegian air forces in 1920 and has been in this country seven years. Neither is married.

BENN'S DENIAL AWAITED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—A stinging denial of allegations of Gov. Gifford Pinchot is expected today from former Public Service Commissioner James S. Benn, accused of having banked $650,000 during the 10 years he was in office.

Benn went into seclusion with former City Solicitor John P. Connelly and Ira J. Williams yesterday to consider a course of action. No statement was forthcoming when he emerged.

It was rumored, however, that either he will personally direct a blast at the Governor sometime today or will order a statement through his legal representatives.

The conference came at a time when Senate representatives were conferring on the selection of counsel to conduct the utilities probe ordered at the past special session of the Legislature.

RUM RUNNERS FLEE BULLETS

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Three men are sought as the trio who escaped unharmed in a fusillade of bullets exchanged between prohibition agents and liquor runners east of Erie today. A truck load of Canadian liquor valued at $15,000 was seized.

The truck, bearing Pennsylvania license plates, was en route to Erie, probably from Buffalo, when four dry agents ordered the driver to halt.

Instead of stopping, he sped away and a volley of shots were fired at the federal agents. Apparently fearful of being overtaken, the liquor runners abandoned the truck.

Later a man who identified himself as Frank Galio, of Carbondale, was turned over to prohibition agents by the state highway patrol after he had reported his truck was stolen. The agents believe he was the driver of the liquor truck.

Spanish Red Attack Fails, 10 Wounded

MADRID, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—Civil Guards, with fixed bayonets, today repulsed a group of 200 Communists who attempted to storm the town hall in Seguraleon after cutting telephone wires leading out of the town.

Ten of the Reds were wounded.

VOLPE SUSPECT HELD FOR U. S.

Detective Walter Monaghan in Central Police Court today asked Magistrate Leo Rothenberg to hold over Tony Circone, 32, of North avenue, arrested in the cleanup following the Bazzano and Volpe racket murders for the government authorities for investigation as to his citizenship. The request was granted.

Monaghan said Circone had refused to explain an intercepted letter received by him from Kansas City, urging him to come there if "things got too hot in Pittsburgh.

Fedela Basilone, of 920 Pittsburgh street, Springdale, arrested yesterday driving a car in Grandview avenue with a revolver and 20 bullets in his possession, police charged, was held for court today charged with violating the state firearms act by Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in Mt. Washington Police Court, and ordered turned over to Federal authorities.

FIVE NAZIS DOOMED

than Hitler himself, who scathingly denounced the Von Papen government and, it was said, identified himself with men found guilty of murder.

HITLER BLUNDER SEEN

A government spokesman said that Hitler had made it extremely difficult for Chancellor Von Papen to show leniency, as any such move would be regarded as yielding to Nazi pressure.

The gravity of the situation was attested in the pledge of the Fascist strong man, Adolf Hitler—and that meant his powerful storm troops as well—to "battle against a government under which this (the death sentences) is possible."

Thus all eyes were focused on Chancellor Franz von Papen and his government, which promulgated the emergency decree of August 9, under which the five men were tried.

KILLED COMMUNIST

All Germany discussed the case of the quintet, three of whom were Nazi followers and two affiliates. They were condemned yesterday at Beuthen, a mining city on the Polish border, for killing a Communist in the village of Potempa.

The tribunal was a "speed court," established to stamp out the violence which was taking hundreds of lives before the balloting of August 31. The men were defended by the personal attorney of Hitler, and, when the sentence came, a riot ensued.

Open threats of reprisals and worse were voiced by the Nazis as the forces of the political right marshaled all their pressure to force the government to alter the sentences.

EXECUTION UNLIKELY

It was generally considered unlikely the five ever would be executed, but the chancellor was confronted with the most difficult of questions, in that he must decide very soon to commute one or all the death sentences to life imprisonment or quash the verdict as demanded by the Nazis.

Indicative of the way the Nazis were taking the court decision was Hitler's telegram to the condemned men, which read:

"My comrades, in the face of this most monstrous blood sentence, I feel bound to you by limitless fidelity. The freedom of each of you from this minute on is a question of our honor. To battle against a government under which this is possible is our duty."

The five men whose lives hang in the balance were the first to receive the death sentence under the August 9 emergency decree.

Other smart dances will be the old-fashioned ones, such as the minuet and cottilion, the dance masters said.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 23.—It was a thrilling experience, arriving in Atlanta last night. We are having a great time, and are preparing to hop off this morning for Bartlesville, Okla., where we will meet the Los Angeles crowd.

AKRON AIRSHIP DAMAGE SLIGHT

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Com. Alger H. Dresel, commander of the Navy dirigible Akron, said today that the damage to the dirigible in an accident last night was "not very great" and in all probability the necessary repairs could be made at the air station.

A rear fin on the ship was damaged when it was struck by a rear handling beam as the ship was being moved down the landing field preparatory to a night training cruise.

Com. Dresel said the full extent of the damage had not yet been ascertained, but he doubted that it was extensive enough to keep the dirigible in its hangar for any appreciable length of time.

The commander said the accident was not similar to the one last February, when the ship's tail broke away from the handling gear and struck the ground.

Once inside the Courthouse it is possible to gain their private offices by way of a circular staircase from the engine room, built during the Armstrong administration.

SUITOR SHOOTS WILKINSBURG GIRL AND HIMSELF

WOUNDED PAIR FOUND IN AUTO

Motive Puzzles Police As Coma Holds Up Investigation

A young Wilkinsburg woman and her bus driver suitor were in critical condition today in Pittsburgh Hospital, each with a bullet wound near the heart. County detectives said the man shot the girl and then himself, as they were parked in his automobile in the fashionable Fox Chapel district last night.

The couple was found in the automobile in Squaw Run road, between Fox Chapel road and Kittanning pike, by C. T. Altvater, of Kittanning Pike.

GIRL CALLS AID

The young woman, according to Altvater, was standing in the car, the top of which was down, and was waving frantically.

Altvater said:

"I discovered that she and her companion had been shot. The woman told me her escort shot her, wounded himself and tossed the revolver into the bushes."

Altvater summoned Motorcycle Patrolman Homer Iseman, of Aspinwall, who sped the couple to the hospital.

ADMITS SHOOTING

Iseman, who formerly worked with Naughton, said the bus driver admitted shooting the young woman, but lapsed into a coma before he could tell his motive. Miss Wolfe's condition did not permit questioning.

Anna left her home at 2 p. m. yesterday to do some shopping, Iseman said he learned. Naughton, who had known Miss Wolfe for some time, had filed suit for divorce in 1930 against his wife, Margaret, then living at 513 South Graham street, charging cruelty, but the case was never heard, according to records of the Prothonotary's office. His estranged wife was at his bedside last night.

County Detectives J. W. Carmichael and Harry Barker today were to question the couple in an effort to determine the motive. They also began a search for the revolver.

AIR CRASH KILLS GIRL, 2 MEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—An airplane crash yesterday at Hybla Valley, Va., near here, claimed the lives of James Howell, 25; Frederick Ehrenfeld, 21, and Miss Ann White, all of Washington.

Howell was a native of Canton, Miss. Ehrenfeld was a former resident of Greensburg, Pa., and Miss White, of Bealton, Va.

The plane, owned and piloted by Howell, crashed from about 500 feet. Its gasoline ignited immediately, and the bodies were burned. A party of friends who had accompanied the trio to the field and were awaiting their turn to ride were powerless to help.

Howell, a clerk in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, obtained his pilot's license about three weeks ago. Ehrenfeld was a librarian in the United States Court of Patent Appeals. Miss White was a graduate nurse.

FEDERAL BLDG. WORK HALTED

Work on Pittsburgh's new $8,000,000 postoffice was halted again today when hoisting engineers were called off the job for a second time.

According to Peter J. Dagnall, business agent of the engineers' union, acknowledgement is demanded from the Building Trades Employers' Association that union engineers are to be employed on sand and gravel hoists of companies with which they do business. The Aronberg-Fried Company, contractors on the postoffice, are members of the association.

F. O. Reed, secretary of the association, said today:

"We will not agree to force the sand and gravel companies to unionize."

Recently the engineers were off the job for five weeks as a protest against the unloading of gravel for the postoffice job by non-union engineers. This dispute apparently was settled last Thursday, when contractors agreed to handle the gravel with union engineers.

Engineers and iron workers were placing steel on the building yesterday.

Conferences are to be arranged with the savings banks and insurance companies and subscriptions will be sought from all building and loan associations of the district. Building and loan men are of the opinion their general bank credits will be restricted as soon as the new Home Loan bank is in operation, and that it will be best to do business in the new system.

William E. Best, of Pittsburgh, Home Loan bank director, has returned to Washington to do further work on the plans for the system.

MOTHER OF 6 ON TRIAL AS KILLER

YORK, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mabel Spiridonof, 31, of Littlestown, mother of six, goes on trial today for killing the woman she thought was stealing her husband's love.

She was indicted for murder in the slaying of Mrs. Pauline Eckenrode, 18-year-old widow, of York. She pleaded not guilty.

The indictment charges Mrs. Spiridonof broke in on a gathering of eight, which included her husband, one day last June, and asked:

"Who is Pauline?"

Mrs. Eckenrode arose from a davenport beside Spiridonof and the older woman, witnesses say, drew a pistol from her waist, and shot the younger woman, mother of two.

BOY, ACTRESS FLEE TOWED

NEWHAVEN, England, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—Twenty-year-old John Amery, son of Leopold S. Amery, former Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Miss Una Eveline Wing, 22-year-old actress, sailed for Paris today, still intent upon being married.

The couple was thwarted in an attempt to be married at the Chelsea, where they were told Amery, who is a film producer, could not be married because he is a minor and would need the consent of his father. Telegrams and telephone calls from relatives had preceded them, asking that the ceremony be held up.

Today they laughed at detectives who sought without success to discover irregularities in their passports and prevent their leaving the country. Amery said:

"We are going to try to be married in Paris, but if we cannot we will go to Biarritz. If not there we'll proceed to Portugal. We're determined to be married somewhere."

LIBBY'S STORY OF MEMORY LAPSE HIT

New Witnesses Assert Singer Told Them Of Fatal Party

By FULTON LEWIS
Universal Service.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 23.—Two witnesses who, it is said, declare Libby Holman Reynolds discussed with them, the next day, events of the fatal birthday party at Reynolda July 5, when Smith Reynolds, tobacco millionaire, met his death, have been uncovered here by state investigators.

The alleged new evidence is considered by the state as vital in refutation of the famous memory lapse story by the Broadway singer.

Libby has steadfastly maintaintained she can remember nothing between noon of July 5 and mid-morning July 6, except that she awoke in the night to find her 20-year-old millionaire husband standing over her bed with a pistol pressed to his temple.

BROTHER IN SECLUSION

Meanwhile, Smith's brother, Dick, due here after a trip half way around the world, continued his role of mystery man by failing to appear, although he is known to have arrived in Miami late Sunday.

Unsubstantiated rumors had it that he was in Atlanta yesterday, and would fly here today, but members of the Reynolds family professed to have no information to this effect.

One of the new witnesses, it was said, declares Libby discussed with him the actions of several of the guests during the evening.

CHARGES COSTUME CHANGE

Assistant Solicitor J. Erle McMichael said the prosecution will lay considerable stress upon the actions of Libby since the death of her young husband, and will bring out before the trial jury the fact that she appeared in deep mourning on the afternoon she gave herself up in Wentworth, N. C., fifty miles from here, but later slipped out of a Reidsville, N. C., hotel attired in a beige sport costume. He added:

"We will also put on the witness stand the Maryland sheriff who will testify that Mrs. Reynolds was playing tennis and indulging in speed boat racing while she was supposed to be convalescing at Oakington, Md., on the Chesapeake Bay."

Libby Knits for Baby; Will Name Child 'Smith'

CINCINNATI, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Libby Holman is in retreat in Baltimore, the Times Star said today, spending much of her time knitting clothing for the baby she expects to be born in February.

And, whether it is a boy or girl, the child will be named Smith Reynolds, in memory of Libby's husband, for whose death she has been indicted by a North Carolina grand jury. She is at liberty under $25,000 bond.

Preparation for approaching motherhood has taken Libby's mind from the tragedy, the paper said, and her only interest now is the child.

She is staying near Baltimore, but the location of her retreat was not made known. With her are her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Holman. Mrs. Holman is expected to stay with her until the child is born, it was said, but her father and her attorney plan to return to Cincinnati late this week.

FEAR OF R. F. C. PUBLICITY ON LOANS FADES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—An optimistic note showed itself today in first reactions to publication of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's loans to banks and other institutions.

Where originally there had been fears that this publicity—given by South Trimble, clerk of the House of Representatives, under a clause in the new relief law—would undermine confidence in the borrowing banks, there was a disposition to point out that these banks had to be, by requirement of law, in fundamentally good condition.

The administration, which had opposed the publicity, maintained a watchful attitude, fully ready to blame the Democratic control of the House for the legislation if bad results should follow.

The report given out yesterday, covering the brief period from July 21, when the relief bill became law, to August 1, showed 437 loans, totaling $45,057,556, of which $32,990,180 was to banks.

Of the total, banks and trust companies were debited with $118,681,810 which they had not found it necessary to draw from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Sentences Under Dry Law Shame, U. S. Judge

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—During the trial of a prohibition case, Federal Judge William B. Sheppard, of Pensacola, Fla., commented yesterday:

"With both (political) parties flopping and turning somersaults on the prohibiton question, a judge hates to look a man in the face and then sentence him to prison for a violation of the prohibition law."

In another dry law case, Judge Sheppard, without giving his own views, said sentences for violations over the country vary and a visiting jurist must first be advised of the sentiment in the community if he is to follow practices of that district.

GUARD TRAINS IN FARM STRIKE

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 23.—(INS.)—Special agents rode trains into Omaha and Sioux City today after two trains had been stopped by striking farmers last night, and livestock and other farm products unloaded from one of them.

A Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific freight train was stopped by more than 100 farmers near Merson, Neb., as it was en route to Sioux City, and livestock in several cars was turned loose. Grain was dumped out of another car.

Striking farmers, meanwhile, maintained their strict blockade of highways into Sioux City and a half dozen small Western Iowa towns, and started strengthening their blockade of roads into Omaha.

All roads into Omaha, the nation's second largest livestock market, were being picketed this morning, but so far no violence has been used to turn back market-bound trucks.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"
THE KING OF BEASTS
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal painter, Paul Bransom. . . . inspired by the brute force and savage cunning which has made the lion ruler of the African jungle.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

BRITISH 'FIGHT' U. S. CIVIL WAR

ALDERSHOT, England, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—"Stonewall" Jackson fought again today in an episode of the Shenandoah Valley campaign in the American Civil War, enacted as a problem in maneuvers on the picturesque commons surrounding Frensham village.

Lieut. Col. F. H. L. Bissett took Jackson's role as commander of a battalion of infantry, a squadron of cavalry and the famous Sphinx battery of Royal Artillery. Arrayed against him were the "National" forces. In all there were about 2,000 troops.

British military experts are keen students of Civil War strategy. There was not a Civil War beard on Jackson's staff today but occasionally a monocle glinted in the sunlight. Dispatch riders were on motorcycles. Armored cars and other mechanical equipment of the modern army replaced the more primitive devices of Jackson's day.

DIVORCES LAID TO LOVE ERRORS

Eugenics Congress Hears Plea for Education

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Mistakes in love-making, bad home-making, and "failure to use leisure time constructively" were blamed for American marriage failures today before the Third International Congress of Eugenics.

The three points summarize the intimate experiences of one of the few marriage-counselling bureaus in the world, the Institute of Family Relations of Los Angeles, Paul Popenoe, director, presented the findings.

Not every love-making difficulty leads to a broken home, he said, but in "our experience" almost every such home is preceded by one. And "several studies agree in suggesting that at least in the educated part of the population" these difficulties exist "in 25 per cent or more of marriages at any one time."

MARRIAGE EDUCATION

Popenoe advocated more sound education about marriage and parenthood and said:

"Unfortunately, the trend of education during the last generation has been unfavorable, because the dominance of a doctrinary feminist point of view has led to a prepreatin ow the differences between the sexes and frequently to ignoring them or denying them altogether."

In bad home-making there are "paralyzing fears" of desertion among many women and some men, "monotony and deady routine" in home life, and a "serious problem" of women who feel lack of proper clothing to appear in society to which they have been accustomed. He added:

"Popularization of controversies and martial conflict, in fiction, on the stage, at the movies, and through the columns of the newspapers, has built up patterns of failure in the public mind, and patterns of success are rather hard to find."

VIEWS ON DEPRESSION

The depression from the eugenic point of view, described by Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the American Musuem, where the congress is held, is a world cataclysm of overpopulation, of over-multiplication of the unfit and the unintelligent, of the reign of terror of the criminal, and of the tragedy of unemployment. He added:

"The only permanent remedy is the improvement and uplift of the character of the human race through prolonged and intelligent and humane birth selection aided by humane birth control."

He defined birth selection as increase of the superior mental stocks.

Birth control, he warned, "may prove to be a two-edged sword, eliminating alike the fittest and the unfittest."

2 Former Troopers Held for Rum Trial

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 23.—(INS.)—Two brothers, both former state troopers, today were being held for Federal Court under $2,000 bond for liquor violations.

The pair, Jesse and Louis King, according to dry agents, were operating separate speakeasies when arrested, August 2.

DEATH REVEALS MARRIAGE

HARRISBURG, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—A romance between a young lawyer and the daughter of a state official, which was culminated with a secret marriage in South Carolina more than a year ago, was revealed today by death.

Nigel Aberdeen League, 25, who fell dead in Greenville, S. C., last night, after making a political speech, had been secretly married to Miss Myrtle Staley, daughter of Lewis E. Staley, secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters. The marriage, performed May 23, 1931, at Aiken, S. C., was revealed today by Staley in announcing League's sudden death.

Announcement of the wedding had been withheld pending League's graduation from the University of Tennessee law school last spring and his subsequent admittance to the bar of South Carolina. League was conceded the nomination for the state House of Representatives in the Democratic primary next week.

WALTERS FOUND FOR COUNTY PROBE

Roy F. Walters, long-sought key witness in the investigation of county affairs, was under subpena today to appear before the grand jury when it resumes its inquiry next Monday, while Gilbert C. Cloonan, former head of the Elections Bureau, notified county detectives he would appear when wanted.

County Detective Frank Ritz served the subpena on Walters, former secretary to the late Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the County Commissioners, at his home, 2342 Bensonia avenue, last night.

ACCEPTS SERVICE

As he accepted service Walters jokingly said:

"Well, you got me."

Walters was reported to have been in Canada on a vacation trip. Because of inability to subpena him, the grand jury recessed August 3, until August 29, when it is expected indictments will be handed down after Walters is questioned.

Walters is believed by the prosecutor's office to have records and papers that would throw light on the county's award of a $200,000 slag hauling contract to Watson Bowser, Kittanning contractor, as well as alleged use by friends and relatives of county officials of gasoline which was charged to the county.

DENIES GETTING GAS

On returning from Miami, Fla., today Cloonan walked into the office of George W. Murren, chief of county detectives, with this statement:

"Here I am. I talked with Assistant District Attorney George Langfitt over the telephone. I told him all I knew was that someone, without my permission, had obtained 10 gallons of county gasoline for my car. I wouldn't stand for anything like that. Langfitt said I wouldn't be needed, but I am ready any time."

U. S. CHILD AID BUREAU '20'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The Federal Children's Bureau today celebrated the twentieth anniversary of its establishment and of the day a woman first became head of a government bureau.

Miss Julia C. Lathrop became chief of the Children's Bureau on August 23, 1912. She died four months ago after having seen three other outstanding women follow the trail she blazed—Miss Grace Abbott is now head of the Children's Bureau of Home Economics.

Commemorating 20 years of aid to inquiring mothers, Miss Katharine F. Lenroot, assistant Children's Bureau chief, today said:

"Jane Addams recently characterized as the great achievement of Miss Lathrop the fact that she made the women of the country — those organized into federations of clubs and leagues of women voters, as well as immigrant women living in crowded cities or mining districts and women living on remote farms — realize that the bureau belonged to them."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Golf still engrosses the social set and will for some time yet before winter breezes come whistling around the corner to drive them indoors. The tournaments of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association always evoke much interest and a large number of spectators are to be found wherever and whenever a tournament is scheduled.

At the meet yesterday at the Fox Chapel Country Club, I noticed a number of folks who have been away most of the summer besides those who've been faithful to the city for the season. Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson I noticed there, wearing a white knitted frock, and playing were Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., in sea green linen with a matching tulle turban, and Mrs. Bernard Shea, who chose a pale green cotton frock with a white hat.

Genevieve Bell, in blue and white checked linen was playing with Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., whose costume was of pink and white checked cotton. Mrs. Carl W. Warmcastle, among the spectators, wore red and white flowered crepe with a white felt hat, and chatting with her was Mrs. Walter J. Curley. Gretchen Warmcastle was there too, watching instead of playing, and she wore blue cotton.

Checks Favored

Mrs. H. M. Dauler I saw chatting with Mrs. Floyd Rose, and she wore yellow boucle with a matching turban, and Mrs. Rose's costume was of white crepe with a white hat. Mrs. James B. Kelly was there, too, as an interested spectator at first, and I think later she played. She wore white pique tying on the shoulders, and a turquoise felt hat. Mrs. John W. Ritchie was playing, and her golf costume was of blue and white striped cotton. With her was Mrs. Thomas Thorne in a blue and white linen frock and white hat.

Seated under a lawn umbrella was Katharine McCloskey, in a suit of pink, black and white printed crepe and a white hat. Representing the younger set were Rebecca Frances Love, in brown crepe printed in orange and eggshell, with which she wore a brown rough straw hat, and Bertha Brooks in a sleeveless white pique sports frock. Mrs. H. L. Roth wore a blue jersey frock with a shell pink mesh yoke, and white turban.

Seen on Lawn

Seated on a bench near the first tee were Mrs. Arch Irvin, in yellow mesh; Mrs. L. E. Bingel, in a pink and white diagonally striped cotton frock; Mrs. Oliver Einstein, in shell pink cotton mesh, and Mrs. A. Leo Weil, Jr., in powder blue crepe.

Mrs. Chester B. Lehman, in beige and brown jersey, I saw chatting with Mrs. L. K. Friedman, the women's golf champion of the Westmoreland Country Club, who was, of course, playing, and who wore white. With them was Lois Hollander, charming in yellow crepe with a white turban.

Mary Kuhn wore white with a white coat, and Anjeannette Hunter wore blue and white-striped cotton with a white felt turban. Mrs. William E. Duff, who also played, wore white with a felt hat. Mrs. C. E. Lott also chose white, and Mrs. F. D. Unkefer wore white pique with smart red buttons and a red felt hat. Mrs. W. J. Lacock, of Shannopin Country Club, was there, and wore a blue tucked cotton frock. Mrs. C. E. Armstrong wore an orange cotton mesh frock and with her was Mrs. J. A. Quinn, in shell pink boucle.

Striped Cotton

At the scoreboard I saw Mrs. E. E. Arensberg, chairman of the handicap committee, in green cotton mesh with a felt hat, and Susanne Anderson, in blue knitted frock with a matching turban. Margaret Huey's dress was of blue crepe, having a smart jacket featuring three-quarter sleeves, and a white felt hat. Kathryn Kuhn was there, too, wearing a green cotton mesh frock with a matching hat.

REVIVAL FASHIONS ARE NOW NEWEST FASHIONS IN PARIS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 23. — It's still new to be old-fashioned. Revivals of styles that were popular in the early nineteen hundreds, and even before, continue to be one of the preoccupations of the better Paris dressmakers. Especially among evening clothes, 20-year-old modes are among the last-minute fads. Lace mitts, ruffled shoulders and billowing skirts are distinctly 1932.

THERE IS still, however, one great difference between the old-time fashions and the modern duplicates; current versions are comfortable and easy to wear. A modern evening gown may give the effect of a narrow waist, but it does not need to hide the discomfort of stays; the effect is sufficient. Modern evening wraps are made for the hurried existence of busy twentieth century women and can be put on and pulled into graceful forms without the old-fashioned primping hours.

VERA BOREA has made one of the most striking of the revival fashions. It is an evening gown of embroidered organdie in pink, with a brown faille jacket—both of which she models herself in her dressmaking salons, and includes in her own personal wardrobe.

* * *

THE DRESS is a youthful, softly falling affair, with floor-length skirt and loose bodice which has widened, drooping shoulders. The jacket, of crisp brown faille, is not quite wrist-length and wraps closely around the hips to tie in a bow at the front. An immense puff of the stiff fabric crosses the shoulders and extends to the waist at both front and back.

Eugenia Lichter Becomes Bride Of M. Seder

On Tuesday evening, August 16, at 8 o'clock in the Hotel Schenley, Miss Eugenia Lichter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lichter, of the North Side, became the bride of Martin Seder, son of Mrs. R. Seder, of Hobart street, Squirrel Hill. Officiating was Rabbi B. A. Lichter, uncle of the bride, before an altar of ferns, palms and garden flowers, and the bride's grandfathers, Joseph Kawolsky and Joseph Lichter, gave the blessings.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire gown of white satin, having long sleeves and a full skirt extending into a full court train. Her veil of tulle was edged with lace and had a full length panel of lace. The pointe lace cap was embroidered with pearls, and the bride's bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. H. Alan Slone, matron of honor, wore green chiffon and carried pink roses, and Miss Beatrice Lichter, her sister's maid of honor, wore blue crepe and carried yellow tea roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Esther Wolfson, in pink crepe, and Miss Lillian Seder, sister of the bridegroom, in peach crepe. Both carried roses and spring flowers.

Isidore Rosner was the best man and ushers included Morris Seder, Irvin Stutz, David Nossokoff and Dr. N. Levitt. The bride's mother wore blue flowered chiffon and the bridegroom's mother chose black crepe. Both wore corsages of tea roses.

After the dinner in the Litchter home for 40 guests, there was a reception for 400 guests in the Hotel Schenley.

Beck Gives Campaign Advice to Hoover

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Representative Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, after a conference with President Hoover yesterday, said he had "submitted certain ideas about the conduct of his campaign."

Beck declined to say what his suggestions were, however. He added he "didn't refer to prohibition," and that he did express optimism concerning the President's chances in Pennsylvania.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- BY SALLY MARTIN

Slanderous Unsigned Letters Shouldn't Be Considered

What would you do if you reecived a slanderous anany-mous letter, telling you that the husband you adored was unfaithful?

Would you believe it?

Or would you pass it by in disgust, as you'd pass a slimy snake?

Marie has just received such a letter and her heart is breaking. For suppose it were true?

Dear Sally:

You have helped so many other people; now will you help me? I have had something terrible come into my life, and I don't know what to think or do about it.

My husband and I have been married 10 years and have a nice little family. We have been so happy all the time, even though we didn't have much, and had a lot of scrimping and budgeting to do. We got along so well together, even if we did have a time, sometimes, making ends meet.

And now when we have gotten ahead a little, and it has begun to seem as if things wouldn't be so hard and we could enjoy life a little, I have received a letter telling me that my husband isn't being true to me.

This letter was just signed "A Friend," and it has nearly driven me crazy.

I have asked my husband about it and he says it is all a lie, that he has never cared for anyone but me and has never paid any attention to anybody else, and that somebody is trying to make trouble for us.

A GOOD HUSBAND

He has always been a good father and a wonderful husband. He has provided for his family, and he seldom goes out nights. When he does go the children and I usually go, too, as he has always said he enjoyed taking us along.

What would you do? I just don't know what to do. It almost breaks my heart, to think of it—of somebody else stepping in now, when everything seemed to be going so well.

Or do you think I have no real reason to worry about anything like that? Is it just somebody trying to make trouble? Do you believe that anyone would write a thing like that, if they weren't sure it was true?

Please h me as soon as you can. I'll b watching for your answer. What shall I do?

MARIE.

What'll you do?

TREAT THIS VICIOUS LETTER WITH THE CONTEMPT THAT IT DESERVES, SISTER! It's only a sneaking attempt to break up your happiness, and you'll be a very foolish woman if you pay one particle of attention to it.

"But would anyone write a thing like that, if it WEREN'T TRUE?" you wail.

They would, indeed!

SAMPLE OF FOULNESS

There are thousands of queer, twisted creatures in this world who get their main satisfaction in life by writing just such letters. These people have not the power in themselves to win or hold love or admiration. They cannot build happiness; and so they get an upside-down happiness by destroying someone else's happiness.

And the more innocent the victim, the more beautiful the happiness, the greater their glee if they wreck it.

This letter is a sample of such foulness. THERE IS ONLY ONE THING TO DO WITH IT—BURN IT UP AND FORGET IT.

Don't repay your husband's years of beautiful devotion by doubting him for one instant. Believe in him and stand steady with him against any attempt to spoil your home.

And if you're still unconvinced, ask yourself this question: SUPPOSE SOMEONE WROTE HIM SUCH A LETTER ABOUT YOU? HOW WOULD YOU FEEL IF HE BELIEVED IT?

Fay King Warns Married Man's Girl Friend Not to Be "Too Sure"

MY WIFE DOESN'T UNDERSTAND ME - ETC. ETC. ETC.
I UNDERSTAND — AND YOU'RE SO WONDERFUL!
YOU'RE FREE NOW, AND IT IS YOUR DUTY TO MARRY ME!
WHY THE RUSH?
YOU SEE I WAS MARRIED WHEN I MET HER AND — I UNDERSTAND PERFECTLY! — AND YOU'RE SO WONDERFUL!
FAY KING

The girl who devotes herself to an unhappily married man must not feel too secure and sure that he will marry her when he is free.

He will want to enjoy his freedom a while.

If she becomes demanding and makes duty speeches she will bore him even more than a wife, who at least has a legal right to lecture him.

He will begin to plan his escape.

First he will declare that marriage would only mar their perfect love and understanding.

If she still insists he will bluntly tell her he can never marry a woman he could not trust and that their association leaves him in doubt of her.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Divorcee's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Does a woman, when already seated, stand up when she is introduced to an elderly lady, or if she is introduced to the President or a preacher or a priest?

2. Are there any particular occasions when she ought to offer to shake hands?

3. I am divorced from my husband. Previous to my marriage my name was Laura Allen. My husband's name was Charles A. Graham. Would it be all right now for me to sign my name (Mrs.) Laura Allen Graham? Or just what would be all right and most correct?

READER.

1. Under any of these circumstances it would be correct for her to rise.

2. She may offer to shake hands when she meets an old friend, woman or man; when a woman or man is being introduced of whom she has heard much through a mutual friend; when her hostess is greeting her or when she is saying goodbye to her hostess and host after a party; when she is the hostess and is welcoming her guests and when they are bidding goodbye to her; when she is offering her congratulations or best wishes to another person; when she is offering sympathy to another person.

3. The best form of name for a divorced woman to use is the last name of her maiden name prefixed to the last name of her married name: in your case, Mrs. Allen Graham. As you will see, this form is dignified, and it quickly carries the message of just what you wish to convey. Also it has the unqualified approval and sanction of people who represent the best form and the best taste.

But most important of all it gets away from the use of the first name . . . a much-to-be-desired thing for a married woman, whether she is a wife, a widow or a divorcee. A wife should use, for her formal name, the form Mrs. Charles Graham. A widow uses exactly the same form: Mrs. Charles Graham. A divorcee uses the form: Mrs. Allen Graham.

No first names ever, you see, in the formal name. An unmarried woman, of course, uses her formal name.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Lovely as a crown for the oval face is the middle parting of the hair. But it is not for the girl with close-set eyes or a long nose. The side parting will serve more graciously.

Run-over heels are tough on ankles, they weaken them. Get taps changed frequently. Acquire the habit of pointing toes straight ahead. One simple walking rule is to so place the foot upon the pavement so that the person approaching will not see the sole of the shoe. When ankles are weak, shoe should be sufficiently broad to provide a firm foothold.

One way to reform oily hair is to change the shampoo medium. Hair has definite ideas about what kind of soap it likes. A small pinch of borax can be added to the suds, if the hair is rinsed thoroughly. Helps the soap to cut into the sebaceous oil, which, combined with atmospheric dust, causes strands to become sleek and gummed. Once a week is not too often to renovate locks that have a way of looking buttered.

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

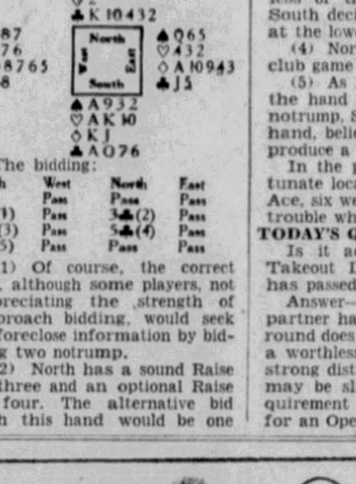
Counting Playing-Tricks

Most players find it easy enough to reckon their honor-tricks and sometimes overwork these honor-tricks in bidding or in supporting partner's bid. The most important factor, however, in the making of many contracts—that is, an accurate knowledge of the playing-tricks, which may vary one way or the other as the bidding progresses—is often overlooked even by good players at the Contract table. There are some old-fashioned players whose Contract still bears marks of the Auction period, who never have learned how to count playing-tricks and whose bidding thereby, instead of being scientifically accurate, is only a series of guesses.

The hand discussed today shows a keen appreciation by one player of the greater number of playing-tricks to be developed in his hand at a suit declaration as compared with notrump, and thus the undertaking of a greater contract, based upon the sound foundation that even though the contract were greater, the combined resources to realize it were also enhanced. Through appreciating this fact, not only a game contract was reached, but a makeable Slam.

West—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	Pass	Pass	Pass
1♣(1)	Pass	3♣(2)	Pass
3NT(3)	Pass	5♣(4)	Pass
6♣(5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Of course, the correct bid, although some players, not appreciating the strength of Approach bidding, would seek to foreclose information by bidding two notrump.

(2) North has a sound Raise to three and an optional Raise to four. The alternative bid with this hand would be one heart, but the heart suit is really a little too weak to show.

(3) South correctly reasons that North's three club bid assures the solidity of that suit. With honors in all the other suits, and assurance of taking the first or second lead, regardless of the selected Opening, South decides to play for game at the lowest contract.

(4) North believes that a club game is safer.

(5) As North elected to play the hand in clubs rather than notrump, South, with his strong hand, believes the hand should produce a Slam.

In the play, due to the fortunate location of the diamond Ace, six were made without any trouble whatever.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Is it advisable to make a Takeout Double after partner has passed?

Answer—Yes. The fact that partner has passed on the first round does not show that he has a worthless hand. It may have strong distributional values and may be slightly below the requirement of 2½ honor-tricks for an Opening bid.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Using X-Ray, Physicians Can Explore for Disease

On November 8, 1895, Dr. Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen discovered the X-ray. Its use has enabled mankind to overcome many serious and baffling diseases, for tremendous strides have been made since that first wonderful announcement.

Dr. Copeland

When first used, the X-ray was almost exclusively employed in the study of broken bones and to locate foreign bodies, such as bullets. Since then, "roentgenology," the branch of medicine devoted to the X-ray, has extended to many other useful purposes, until now its value is almost unlimited. Today the physicians can explore every part of the human anatomy.

In cases of disease where the signs are obscure, he can rely upon the X-ray to aid him in making a diagnosis. Of greatest importance is the use of the X-ray machine in detecting certain abnormalities within the body, which now are discovered before they have given rise to any signs of disorder.

It would be impossible to estimate the number of lives that have been saved by the aid of the X-ray machine. Since 1895 medicine has greatly changed. In former years doctors exerted their efforts toward the treatment of disease and relief of suffering. Today, in addition to relieving pain, the physicians try to prevent disease. This real science, called "preventive medicine," would be of little avail were it not for the discovery of the X-ray. By means of the X-ray many diseases are disclosed which, if neglected, might result in certain deformity, or even death.

An X-ray examination is a simple and painless procedure. It causes no discomfort, inconvenience or pain. By means of a special sensitive material, placed over that part of the body to be examined, an imprint or X-ray negative is made. When this imprint is developed, in a fashion similar to the development of a camera film, it enables the physician to study and weigh the findings.

By means of the X-ray the head can be thoroughly examined. Fractured skulls, tumors, infections of the sinuses, teeth and other parts of the bony structure of the skull all are easily detected.

The chest also may be very carefully scrutinized by means of the X-ray, which has aided tremendously in the recognition of early tuberculosis. It reveals even the preliminary signs of tuberculosis, and this is vitally important, because early recognition means cure. One may harbor germs of consumption and be suffering from an advanced stage of the disease without any marked discomfort.

In addition to tuberculosis of the chest, other diseases, such as abscesses, pleurisy, enlarged heart and tumors, can be detected by means of the X-ray. Abnormalities of the stomach, intestines, gall-bladder, kidneys, bones and joints, also cancer and other serious diseases, are quickly discovered by an X-ray examination.

If advised to have an X-ray picture, do so at once.

1—The Triangle Grocers Association is a group of locally owned and managed stores. By co-operating in their buying, they are able to benefit by quantity purchases while saving their individual customers excess charges. Carload prices on the things they buy are as low as you can secure anywhere.

2—There are no high salaried executives or extensive office forces at work to demand excess costs. Each store is managed by its owner, an economical procedure as far as you are concerned.

3—These grocers never "price bait"—an extremely wastful procedure. Price baiting marks a false value on one item to attract you to the store, while extracting undue profits from another item to make up for it. Every item in these stores is marked fairly for minimum individual profits. You'll find that works to your ultimate savings.

4—Because we are a permanent part of this town, we insist that our business be run on the highest standard. That's why we are even more careful than the law asks in insuring correct weights and measures.

Listening In -:- "Thorgy" In Air. Richman's "Ribber" Superstitious Keys

Ed Thorgerson, the NBC announcer, has become a glider enthusiast since he started working with J. K. "Jack" O'Meara, young soaring plane pilot, experimenting for the latter's broadcasts from the sky over New York. Thorgerson talks with O'Meara by short-wave telephone circuit . . . Although Albert Payson Terhune spent most of his days in college winning prize story contests, he also had time to make a name for himself as a sprinter, boxer, weight thrower and fencer . . . They're talking about adopting a new song for Harry Richman, "Ribber, Stay 'Way from My Door," because Jimmy Wallington has been "ribbing" Harry so much on his broadcasts.

Mr. Thorgerson

The Three Keys are having a hard time avoiding one of their pet superstitions since they went to New York. They consider it bad luck for another pedestrian to pass between them when they walk together . . . so they've taken to holding on to each other's arms in crowds . . . Incidentally, Bob Bon Bon, the tenor of the trio, confesses that he once aspired to become a surgeon.

Seibel Discusses Theater on WCAE

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(And which is just as well!)

That Edwin Arlington Robinson, America's premier poet, has never appeared in public... He has never lectured nor has he recited any of his poems to an audience larger than two, himself included.

(And that must be the reason why Mr. Robinson is so popular.

That if you stroke a cat's back in a heated dry room, you can produce sparks.

(All I ever got was scratches.)

That a species of fish in the Pacific Ocean croons to its little ones.

(That's why so many radio fans commit suicide by gas instead of drowning.)

That of the doctors who died last year, five succumbed from overdoses of medicine, one was kicked by a cow, and one swallowed a dental plate.

(The last one was probably suffering from hunger.)

That there are 3,900 people in the United States who are 100 years old or more.

(But there are more than that many chorus girls in burlesque alone.)

That, according to best statistics available, the average man spends only 30 minutes a day on his newspaper.

That it will cost $50,000 a year to keep the windows clean at the new Medical Center in New York.

That there is a new soap being readied that has neither taste nor smell, and is high in food value.

(All they need now is to invent a way for you to take a bath without disrobing, and the world will be perfect.)

That once you start swallowing, you can't stop—which is why people swallow safety pins and toothpicks.

(Of course, this has nothing to do with liquor.)

That if we could communicate with Mars, the speed of radio is such that the signal would arrive on the neighboring planet in less than 2 minutes.

(A loud shout directed across the room at my office boy frequently gets him in less than 2 hours.)

That the "Nautilus," in which Sir Hubert Wilkins atempted to sail under the North Pole, was rented from the U. S. Navy for $1 a year.

That if a fish is frozen stiff immediately after catching, and thawed again a day later, it will come back to life.

(You play around with that one!)

That the sun is losing weight each year, and in about 3,000,000 years will waste away to candle light.

(As if I didn't already have enough to worry about.)

That 35 people a minute call the telephone company in New York just to find out the time.

(They then roll over on the other side.)

That you don't have to go to the trouble of visiting the license bureau to be legally married . . . You can draw up your own contract and file a copy with the county clerk.

(Of course, you can save yourself all the trouble by not getting married.)

That practically the only sound effect on the radio that doesn't have to be simulated by artificial means is the sound of a kiss.

(Proving there's nothing like the real thing.)

That the elevators in the Chrysler Building travel more than 1,000 miles a month.

That if you use what is commonly termed No. 16 mesh wire for your screens, it will keep out the mosquitos as well as the flies.

But being a drugstore employe, he eats on his boss.)

That in the seventeenth century in England, smoking was permitted in church.

(It was the only way they could keep the parishioners awake.)

That Cardinal Wolsey, Richelieu and Alexander the Great all had noses larger than Jimmy Durante.

And that Frederick the Great had a nose which Lavater picked out of 10,000 others while blindfolded.

Producer Signs Brunette, Blonde, Red-Head For Film Farce

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 23.

The impartiality of political candidates is reflected today on the Paramount lot. For "The Phantom President," the studio has signed a blonde, a brunette and a red-head.

The three are the dark-haired Kathryn Crawford, crimson-polled Joyce Compton and Greta Granstedt, of the sunny locks.

They will play, respectively, Nita, Rita and Lita, a fizzy-paced trio of usherettes for the comedy sequences between George M. Cohan and Jimmy Durante, "The Phantom President" is Paramount's entry in the cycle of political comedies.

The trio of girls all have their screen followings and have played importantly in talking pictures before.

Joyce Compton

Miss Compton matched her locks with Clara Bow's in "The Wild Party" for her first important role. More recently she appeared in George Bancroft's "Lady and Gent."

Greta Granstedt is another discovered for the screen by the lynx-eyed scouts who attend the local stage productions. She appeared in the film, "Street Scene."

SHE WAS INTERESTED

The usher in charge of the "starters" at one of Hollywood's recent stage opening was approached by a patron who complained that a woman's constant applause was ruining the show. Checking up, the usher found she wasn't on his list of applause starters. So he challenged her.

"Young man," she snapped, "If I can help it, this show is going to be a success. I run a boarding house and these actors owe me money!"

On the "I'm a Fugitive" set at Warners a Georgian gives technical advice on prison camps and realism to the atmosphere mob.

He keeps out of camera range. The reason he gives is that the extras used in the foreground in the early part of the picture are weeded out for variety later on and jobs are scarce.

He's escaped seven times from a road camp and can slip off the wrist or ankle shackles as fast as they can be locked on him. He showed me the fetter scars and the marks of chains on his body.

BOULEVARD CHATTER

Lionel Barrymore says, "What this country needs is a 5-cent cigar without the three for a half label" . . . Jackie Cooper has organized a band among the neighborhood kids. He can't decide whether to be leader or play the bass drum . . . Bill Thomas bought a bicycle so that some one would say Dallas Dexter is riding it to work in Eddie Cantor's picture . . . Blanche Mehaffey and husband, John Like, at the Bohemian . . . Lewis Milestone alone there with his thoughts . . . Eddie Horton has bought a 16-cylinder job . . . Lupe Velez gave the M-G-M commissary lunchers a start yesterday by hiding her new Mexican dog under her napkin . . . The watchman on the skull and bones set for "The Mask of Fu Manchu" curled his spine last night when a skeleton's head started nodding. He got a flashlight and found a mouse gnawing the leather tie-strap.

Lupe Velez

Mel Brown, back in town from his salmon fishing, knows why they called them goldfish in the Army. The gold stands for what it costs to catch them.

The picture is temporarily titled "The Bookworm Turns."

Paramount's teaming habit continues to spread. The studio is working up a new story for Gene Raymond and Frances Dee.

"Night After Night," on the same lot, is filling up with important names. Roscoe Karns is added to the cast, which includes George Raft, Wynne Gibson, Mae West, George "Dink" Templeton and All Hill, the ex-acrobat.

Lead Role Switched In Carroll Film

Constance Cummings has taken the place of Nancy Carroll in the leading feminine role of Paramount's "Night After Night." Miss Carroll has been switched to the leading role in "Hot Saturday," replacing Carole Lombard in that production.

"Diamond Lil"

Mae West, the "Diamond Lil" of the New York stage, startled Hollywood when she arrived there recently. She weighed 119, while in "Diamond Lil" she appeared to tip the scales at 160. "Padding," she said.

New Marion Davies Picture Reviewed, Lauded By Film Critic

By MABELLE JENNINGS,

Motion Picture Critic, Washington Herald.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 23.

After all, the play's the thing.

To "Blondie of the Follies," the new Marion Davies starring vehicle, which had its initial showing at Loew's Palace here, Frances Marion brings little beyond the tried-and-true materials of a Cinderella romance.

Having tasted the luxuries and lively times that are the everyday existence of "Follies" chorine Lurline Cavendish, who used to be Lottie Callahan and herself a department store clerk, and found them sweet, Blondie McClune leaves her East Side tenement home for a Park avenue penthouse and the feathers and silver-cloth and pearls which are the things little "Follies" dancing girls are made of.

After innocently attracting—and being attracted to—the wealthy young man with whom Lurline has taken up, and of whom she is tortured by jealousy, Blondie, out of loyalty to the friend of her childhood, refuses to see him, eventually, in order to insure against a weakening of her resolve, accepting the devotion and do-re-mi of a big man about oilfields.

This abates Lurline's mad envy but temporarily, and it blazes up again when Blondie, on the eve of the unhappy Larry's departure for Europe, tells him goodby. During the "Follies" performance that night, the jealousy-crazed girl is responsible for an accident that sends Blondie to a hospital, and thence into the arms of the man whose love occasioned all the heartache and whoopdedoo.

PERFECT CINEMA

What "Blondie of the Follies" may have been as the Francis Marion story, this deponeth knoweth not, having neglected to read it, but certainly it emerges as pretty nearly perfect cinema entertainment. It has humor and reserve, sophistication and sentimental appeal, taste and timeliness.

In Marion Davies' wide repertory of gay and gallant heroines none is more plucky and winsome than the Blondie whom Larry perferred. Here is a shining performance, versatile, rounded and right as a trivet (whatever that might be). Lovely to look at, she enlivens the backstage romance with fresh humor; colors it with softness, sincerity and roseate emotions, nicely restrained.

Billie Dove, as the unhappy Lurline, despite a regrettable plumpness, adds pictorially; plays uncompromisingly and to excellent effect, but it is Miss Davies who gives "Blondie of the Follies" the prestige of an important contribution. Even if you use superlatives sparsely, you can hardly avoid describing her characterization of the spirited daughter of the tenements as pretty swell pretending. In range and credibility, in charm and sprightliness, Marion Davies' Blondie represents the talented comedienne's finest filming to date.

SPLENDID CAST

Robert Montgomery, almost uncannily right as to casting, does Larry intelligently and ingratiatingly.

As Blondie's dad, James Gleason is forthright and sympathetic to a degree, while Zasu Pitts, Sidney Toler and Sarah Padden make the balance of her family as wearing and colorless as complacent poverty is likely to be.

The rib-tickling drolleries of Jimmy Durante brighten a penthouse party, and afford an opportunity for Miss Davies' impersonation of Garbo in "Grand Hotel," a superb bit of caricature.

What I am trying to say is that Miss Davies' new vehicle is slick and workmanlike and highly geared—worthy of hitching to its illustrious star.

Holy Rasputin Eats Toads In Cinema

By GEORGE SEIBEL

You won't be shocked to death by that "Rasputin" picture at the Avenue Cinema, even though the Mad Monk eats toads or frogs alive and gets too gay with the ladies, who just can't resist such a saint. The picture seems to be close enough to history to give the impression of a newsreel, and there is enough abnormal psychology served with piquant sauce to make it a lesson on religious fanaticism.

Mr. Seibel

Rasputin, having made the Czarina believe that he cured her child, gets an uncanny ascendency over this superstitious woman, and through her over the still weaker Czar. Soon he is ruling Russia, despite the intellectuals who see that the "holy man" is a filthy faun. At the finish he is lured to a rendezvous with a woman, and is both poisoned and shot. Then the Czar in a few months has to abdicate and is sent to exile and death, as Resputin has prophesied.

It seems to be fairly true as history, while psychology describes many cases of the kind. Women, being very emotional, fall easy victims to religious fakirs. Scratch a saint, and you will often find a sinner. Fanatics and prophets are generally driven by the devils of sex. There have been a score of Houses of David in the U. S. A., so ignorant emotionalism isn't a Russian monopoly. But there are some magnificent types of it on the screen at the Avenue—wrinkles and whiskers and leering eyes, and a very respectable pig that squeals with indignation at being brought into such verminous company.

The important point is that Rasputin is not a hypocrite. He is only ignorant and fanatical like his followers. The world is full of such, but they don't all get to the Czarina. When they do, history becomes a tragic farce.

BITS OF LIFE

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

TWO LADIES sat in a class speakeasy the other night and surveyed the situation. With them sat—or rather swayed—a bald-headed gentleman who was getting more out of control every minute. It wouldn't be long before he passed out of his own accord or was knocked out by somebody else.

"Thas what I always shay," he hiccoughed. "You can't depen' on Wall street. That was the wrong kind of street. Never know what'sh gonna happen. Never know—"

His head began to droop. One of the ladies nudged him.

"What'sa matter, pop?" she asked. "Feeling tired?"

The stew sat suddenly erect.

"Who, me?" he exclaimed. "Nothing of the kind. I'm a man never feelsh tired. Not me. No, siree. I'm the all-night kid, thas what I am. Keep on for daysh and daysh. Whoopee!"

He kept jabbering away about nothing in particular. And the damsels put their heads together.

"This guy's a false alarm," whispered the first one. "We made a mistake in going out with him in the first place. He hasn't spent 10 bucks, and it's now a hundred to one that he's not going to. Let's give him the air as pronto as possible."

The second one nodded.

"Okay," she returned. "He's no prize package with me either. Is there anybody else in the joint that looks good to you?"

Both ladies gazed around the place. The first one tapped her companion's arm and pointed to a corner table.

"Pipe that guy over there," she said. "The one with the blue necktie."

The second damsel looked in the indicated direction. She saw a middle-aged man who was seated there with a woman and who was apparently enjoying himself immensely.

"I see him," she replied. "What about him?"

"Well," murmured the first, "he's been buying wine for that dame ever since they got here. He looks like a live one to me, and we can certainly use a live one these days. Let's nab him."

"All right with me," responded the second. "But how?"

Her companion nodded wisely.

"Just leave it to me, honey. Once I get my eye on them, they never slip past me. I've had four husbands who will vouch for that fact. You watch me."

They sat quietly for a few minutes. The stew with them had quieted down and was now sleeping peacefully, his head on the table. The woman at the other table suddenly arose and walked in the direction of the ladies' retiring room.

"Come on," said the first girl. "Let's follow her."

Down the corridor went the three of them. And as soon as they were together, the first young woman became extremely friendly.

"Hello, dearie," she cried amiably. "How are things?"

The other woman appeared a trifle startled. Then a smile crept over her face.

"Very well, thank you," was her response.

Silence for a few seconds. Then——

"The guy with us isn't any too hot," the first one continued. "Guess you noticed that. May, here, and I are pretty bored. And by the way, how's the fellow with you? Is he a live one?"

The other woman tapped her nose with her powder puff.

"He's as live as he'll ever be," she retorted in a matter-of-fact tone. "He's been my husband for 25 years!" . . .

IN AN uptown saloon the other morning, a speakeasy proprietor who very rarely gets drunk staggered out into the night hours ahead of schedule. The customers were still discussing the boss's rare load when the phone rang. The bartender answered. It was a nearby station house.

"Say," cried the lieutenant, "we just gotta report that you put a drunk outa there in bad condition. You better look after him and watch out in the future."

"Okay," replied the bartender. "It's nice an' cold out there this mornin.' He won't lay there long."

Some time later, curiosity prompted the bartender to peep outside. He was just in time to see two patrolmen come along and pick up a body. The body later proved to be that of the speakeasy owner, who was unconscious from a heavy fall.

The owner was rushed to the hospital. And his own place was given a big black mark in the station house records for not taking care of the victims of its dynamite! . . .

Taurog Will Direct "Lost Souls" Film

Norman Taurog, winner of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences 1931 award, for his direction of "Skippy," has been named by Paramount to direct "Isle of Lost Souls," an adaptation of H. G. Wells' novel, "The Island of Dr. Moreau." Taurog will spend the next few weeks projecting screen tests of several hundred non-professional girls who seek the opportunity to portray the panther woman in the picture.

Sylvia Sidney Signed In "All My Love"

Sylvia Sidney's next screen appearance will be made in "All My Love," according to an announcement from the Paramount studios. The story is now being scenarized by Sidney Buchman, who has just completed work on Cecil B. De Mille's "The Sign of the Cross."

INROADS MADE BY ROOSEVELT

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Additional returns in the nationwide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States show Gov. Roosevelt still making tremendous inroads into Republican strength.

With 75,983 votes tabulated, 63 per cent of which favor the Democratic nominee, Roosevelt is drawing 41 per cent of the 43,481 persons who indicated on their ballot cards that they supported Hoover four years ago. Hoover, on the other hand, is known to have drawn only 4 per cent of the 26,973 who voted Democratic in 1928.

The tabulation discloses that with a marked predominance of former Hoover supporters represented in the returns, the two candidates stand almost equally in the number of supporters from their own parties.

Hoover has 25,683 Republicans backing him, while Roosevelt has 25,814 Democrats to his credit. It is the swing away from Hoover of 17,798 Republicans of four years ago that is giving Roosevelt his lead of almost 20,000 over the President.

In contrast to this, Hoover is credited with only 1,159 votes from 1928 Democrats.

A total of 5,632 voters failed to designate how they stood four years ago. Of these 4,194 are now backing Roosevelt and 1,438 are supporting Hoover.

HOOVER CARRIES OHIO IN POLL

while Roosevelt has 32,798 men and 15,008 women.

OHIO RESULT CLOSE

Today, additional ballots besides cutting down the Roosevelt percentage as a whole, likewise reduced his advantage in both sex groups. His men percentage dropped from 66 to 64 and the women from 60 to 59.

While Ohio today passed into the Hoover column, it was only by the slender margin of 8 votes, the score for the state standing 2,041 for Hoover to 2,033 for Roosevelt. This slight advantage, however, brought the Hoover potential electoral vote up to 76 from Sunday's mark of 50 and reduced Roosevelt's from 481 to 455.

In addition to the Ohio gain, the day's returns reduced by 256 the Roosevelt lead in New York state, giving him a margin of 340 instead of the 626 recorded in Sunday's tabulation.

In a dozen other states for which new returns were tabulated today, the additions increased rather than decreased the Roosevelt lead.

VANDALS FIRE RACE TRACK

RAVENNA, O., Aug. 23.—(INS.)—A blaze authorities said was of incendiary origin today swept through the Exposition Park race track here, leveled the grandstand and other park buildings, and resulted in damage estimated at $100,000.

Several horses owned by the Ravenna cavalry were thought to have perished in the fire, which broke out simultaneously in four of the park buildings.

Racing was attempted at the track this summer but was halted due to the objections of the Citizens League. Fairs were discontinued at the Exposition Park in 1929.

Assistant State Fire Marshal Fred Knapp declared the blaze was of incendiary origin after finding a gasoline can near one of the burned structures. Police started an immediate search for vandals.

Dealers Won't Lend Autos to Women

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Evanston automobile dealers think it's a fine idea to teach women to drive cars—as long as somebody else's machines are used.

They flatly refused to lend their automobiles to 58 women so they could complete a practical course in driving given by Frank Kreml, head of the bureau of accident prevention.

WORK OF MOOSE CITED BY DAVIS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Several thousand delegates of the Loyal Order of Moose gave a tremendous ovation last night to United States Senator James J. Davis, director general of the order, as he spoke at their international convention.

Davis, who was indicted a few days ago on a charge of aiding in alleged lotteries conducted by the Moose, discussed politics briefly, saying Republicans and Democrats co-operated in the last session of Congress to the best of their ability to solve the country's problems.

Much of the success of the Moose, Davis said, was the result of the order's democracy. He praised the philanthropic work at Mooseheart and Moosehaven, and said the organization now is caring for 3,000 children and 700 aged men and women.

Supreme officers of the order were accompanied as they marched into the convention hall by Gov. George White, David S. Ingalls, White's Republican opponent in the forthcoming gubernatorial election, and former Congressman James T. Begg, general convention chairman.

CLEARS DEATH OF RECLUSE

NATCHEZ, Miss., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Authorities pondered today the story of a Negress rooming house operator which tended to clear up the slaying of Jane Surget Merrill, 68-year-old recluse, on August 4, last.

Emily Jones told Chief Deputy Sheriff Joseph Stone and two of his assistants last night that she was at Glenbury plantation, the Merrill ancestral home, the night Miss Merrill was shot to death.

They said she told them that the recluse was slain by George Pearls, a Negro gunman who three days later was himself shot to death by a policeman at Pine Bluff, Ark.

Miss Jones' statement removed the suspicion that was cast about the eccentric couple. Richard Dana and his housekeeper, Miss Octavia Dockery, who were neighbors of Miss Merrill's.

BOY HIKING HERE DISAPPEARS

The disappearance of Walter Freidel, 14, while he was en route along a highway from his home in Ellet, O., to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Paul Horning, of 818 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, was reported by relatives today.

The boy was last seen August 16, west of Salem, O., when he climbed into a truck.

He was described as 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighing 94 pounds and clad in a tan shirt and blue trousers. He was carrying blankets, white trousers and a shirt.

KELLY ESTATE LEFT TO WIDOW

An estate estimated at between $50,000 and $100,000 was left by John G. Kelly to his widow in his will, filed for probate today. Kelly, son of Judge William Kelly, inventor of Bessemer steel process, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert B. King, 1251 North Negley avenue, August 12.

Consisting of only a few typewritten lines, the will made no estimate of the amount of the estate. It specified everything was left to Mrs. Kelly and named the Bessemer Trust Company, of Braddock, and Mrs. King as executives.

Amount of the estate was estimated from the probate fee paid by the attorneys, McClure and McClure.

FLOOD-FLOATED BODIES IN CITY

HARBIN, Manchuria, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Manchuria is gradually raising its head above the flood waters which have engulfed the country for three weeks, entailing the loss of thousands of lives and millions of dollars damage.

As the water recedes bodies from flooded cemeteries are floating in the streets, adding another menace to the already critical sanitary situation. The spread of cholera has terrified the population.

The economic situation is grave and the possibility of a moratorium is being discussed. Telegraph and postal services are disorganized, and the great bridge over the Sungari threatens to collapse, cutting off Manchuria from Siberia.

Last night at Asio, near Harbin, 50 persons were drowned by a sudden rise of water.

Woman Plotter Freed by Machado

HAVANA, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Mariana Delatorre, Cuban feminist, who was sentenced to life imprisonment recently on a charge of plotting against the life of President Machado, received a presidential pardon yesterday and was released from prison.

Her son and two other young men are serving life sentences in connection with a plot to bomb the President's automobile.

Mellon to Be Hoover Finance Head Here

—By MARK SHIELDS—

W. L. Mellon is to be chairman of the Western Pennsylvania committee to raise finances for the Hoover campaign. A goodly portion of the money will be spent outside of the state, as is usual, though this year the percentage retained for use here may be larger than is normally the case because of the apparent danger to Republican congressional candidates in a number of districts.

Mr. Shields

Mr. Mellon was desired as chairman of the committee for all of Pennsylvania, but declined because of the press of business. Even as head of the western wing he will not be perpiringly active, but the potency of his name signed to a letter requesting contributions is not be to be denied.

That was one purpose in having him take the post. But there was another, designed for usefulness outside of Pennsylvania. The tie-up of Mellon in an official capacity to the Hoover administration's bid for re-election, may serve to allay the reports that when A. W. Mellon left the Treasury to become Ambassador to Great Britain he was virtually "kicked upstairs" to make room for Ogden Mills.

This report did not sit well in some financial circles, where the Mellon name over a period of years had come to stand for magic in prosperity. There were those who believed Mr. Hoover had been ungrateful, that he long had been antagonistic to the eminence of the Pittsburgh banker, and seized a period of the depression to get rid of him.

If the nephew of the former secretary is willing to attempt to raise money—no easy nor pleasant task this year—for the advancement of Mr. Hoover then the national management of the Republican campaign will point to that fact as proof that all is well between the President and the former cabinet officer.

Legislators Save Little During Special Sessioon

Having from time to time served as critic of the members of the Legislature, it is only reasonable that upon occasion I should serve as an apologist, and hereby the responsibility is fulfilled.

It was charged the members had been the only beneficiaries of the special session through payment of their salaries of $500. Had they completed their tasks in a short time—which they should have done (criticism again)—they might have showed a profit. But $500 melted quickly in Harrisburg hotels over a span of eight weeks. An example:

It will be recalled that Senator William D. Mansfield, when he decided to hold his legislative job upon becoming county commissioner, pledged all of his legislative pay above his expenses to charitable organizations. Yesterday the Senator mailed checks for $100 each to the Helping Hand Associations of Pittsburgh and McKeesport. Therefore, it cost him $300 for the time he was in Harburg, an extremely modest sum.

The cost to some members, who have not the frugal habits of the Senator as to his expenditures for personal needs, undoubtedly was larger. Two hundred dollars above actual expensis is at the rate of $25 a week, no sum on which to retire or to make the fortunate investments of a Public Service Commissioner.

Coyne Committee Begins Work Soon

The Coyne committee to investigate the cost of government in Allegheny County will publicly begin its work within a short time. It will request office space from the county or city governments, attempt to borrow a couple of stenographers, arrange for its own investigators—the committee has no appropriation—and then get down to open inquiry.

Meanwhile Senator Coyne has been conferring with business men of high type regarding their attitude on governmental costs and taxation. He has been getting views as to what they would do had they a direct hand in the piloting of public business. Some of these ideas probably are visionary and impossible, for some of the saddest spectacles of political history, some of the greatest failures, have been scored by business men suddenly charged with responsibility to the taxpayers.

However, the conferences should prove beneficial in the final analysis. For instance, it may be discovered that some of the services demanded of government could be better performed privately, without burdening the taxpayers with gingerbread work and architectural scrolls on the structure of public affairs.

May Rub Salt Into Political Wounds

It is inconceivable that the Senator will not take some short and peering excursions into political fields. The complexion of his committee insures that, being comprised in addition to the chairman of Senator Morris Einstein, and Representatives Neely, Soffel and Wettach. There is not much rebellion in that roster toward anything the Senator asks.

The County Bureau of Elections will come in for some questioning, the committee having no friendly feeling toward its director, John W. Vickerman. The County Engineering Department also may face quiz, and so will the School Board.

Coyne explained:

"I'm not charging graft in any of these departments, but there may be some extravagances which can be cured by open discussion."

Also, there may be some politics which will not be cured, but into the open wounds of which salt will be rubbed.

COACH CONTEST SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

By MAX HENRICI
Staff Correspondent.

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—The American and Canadian winners in the miniature coach-building contest of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild are at the General Motors Corporation's proving grounds today, where, as one of the officials put it, cars are being run to death, the boys' entertainment, to show what is in them. Automobiles are being subjected to every sort of difficult test to demonstrate what they will endure.

Later in the day the boys are to visit the Fisher Body and Chevrolet plants, at Flint, to see how cars are constructed.

They are to be entertained at the Orchard Lake Country Club this evening.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

A full day of sight-seeing yesterday was climaxed by a banquet at which the winners of the four $5,000 scholarships were announced. In the senior division they are Frank Ibisch, of Columbus, Wis., and Gordon Drummond, of Washington, D. C., and in the junior division Fred Friedrich, of Rochester, N. Y., and Raymond Smith, of Lawton, Okla.

H. J. C. Henderson, secretary of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, announced that 165,000 miniature coaches had been submitted in the competition. He said that another competition would be started immediately, for which boys may enroll after September first. Two winners from each of the states and from each of seven Canadian districts will be given a trip to the century of progress world's fair at Chicago next summer, and in addition four $5,000 scholarships will again be awarded.

GIBBONS BROADCASTS

The auditorium in the General Motors Building, where the banquet was held, was decorated and equipped for the occasion to represent a craftsman's guild hall of the Middle Ages, and there was pomp and pageantry, heralds with trumpets, and sentinels with spears to add to the effect. The boys wore artists' berets. Even the waiters and musicians were attired in quaint medieval costumes.

Floyd Gibbons, as master of ceremonies, broadcast the proceed-

Father Sees Girl, 3, Killed by Autos

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Three-year-old Madeline Sullivan saw a familiar figure approaching, and started across the street. An automobile hit the child, and another, speeding past, ran over her body and did not stop. She was dead when her father picked her up.

CHAPTER II.

Surely no child ever had a more romantic beginning than Val. No child of the theater knew more about makeup and the subtlety of color and line. Watching the beautiful Millie dress was a liberal education.

No gambler's daughter ever jumped from silk and lace to gingham and patches, and back again, with greater nonchalance than the daughter of Millie Macfarlane. Nothing surprised her, changes came so quickly in Millie's heliotrope-scented, carelessly hospitable rooms.

Millie was Val's god, her ideal of everything that was gracious and lovely. Millie was the Fairy Princess, and Jim Atkinson was the Prince for whom they had been waiting.

After Jim came there was a long period of comfort and security. Val almost forgot the paper cartons of cooked spaghetti, and the sour-faced landladies who were tired of waiting for the rent. For a whole year they lived in an atmosphere of quivering, idyllic happiness. Millie loved her sailor with all the warmth and tenderness of a gay and generous nature, and he adored her silently and unselfishly, asking little, giving much.

His only worry was for Val.

"It isn't quite the right life for the youngster," he would say sometimes, watching the child uneasily out of clouded, sea blue eyes. "Might have the wrong influence on her . . . you know, when she grows up."

"Oh, nonsense!" Millie would cry gayly, ruffling his thick, dark hair with one hand. Val's downy topknot with the other.

Millie never had any misgivings any more. There was a time, just at first, that she had worried. That was when she realized how completely, how fully, she could forget the little girl.

ALARMED AT TIMES

It frightened her sometimes, this dark, swift tide of her passionate love for Jim, sweeping her into deep, uncharted waters, making her forget everything that had mattered before. Even her baby, her own warm, sweet flesh and blood.

Oh, everything had worked out very well, just as things always did if you refused to get upset and think about them. Didn't she have Jim, and the baby, too? Weren't they all happy? Millie wasn't one of your worriers. Jim . . . so good . . . little Val, so small and loving, so full of promise of beauty to come . . . she'd grow up and marry some day, a good man . . . one who would know how to take care of her, keep her safe.

There would be no adventure for Val, no risks, no sacrifices. Millie wasn't afraid for herself, she would not let herself be

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 23. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, the old gentlemanly game of politics is just starting to hit her stride. Roosevelt, in his Ohio speech, gave seven points where he would remedy things.

Will Rogers

The Hoover bunch are trying to get the market up seven points, so this is a seven-point campaign.

The minute one side makes a speech, the humorously called "strategists" on the other side go into a huddle to pick it apart, which all don't mean a thing. There is not a voter in America that 24 hours after any speech was made could remember two sentences in it. Politicians amuse more people than they interest.

Yours, WILL.

ROBBER ELUDES PURSUIT FROM RESTAURANT

Suspect Held in Movie Stickup; Loot in 2 Jobs Over $400

After leisurely partaking of ham and eggs, a gunman held up the waiter in Perry Null's restaurant, 514 Grant street, and fled with $104.50, the contents of the cash drawer, early today, according to a police report.

It was when John Tuck, the waiter, served his "customer" a second cup of coffee that he looked into the muzzle of a pistol. There was no one else in the restaurant at the time, it was reported.

Tuck ran out after the thief, and enlisted the aid of a patrolman, but search for the outlaw was futile.

THEATER SUSPECT HELD

A suspect was being held by East End police today in connection with the $300 holdup of the Liberty Theater, 6237 Penn avenue, last night.

Louis Chinadres, 39, homeless, was arrested at Station street and Frankstown avenue, shortly after W. D. Davis, of 6024 Friendship avenue, manager of the theater, had been compelled by a middle-aged man, armed with an automatic pistol, to hand over the money comprising the day's receipts.

ROBBED THROUGH WINDOW

Davis told police the stickup man raised a side window while he was counting the money in his office, pointed the pistol at him and commanded:

"Hand it over!"

Davis complied.

Although Chinadres was said to resemble the holdup man, police found neither the loot nor the pistol on him. He denied guilt in the crime.

NEWS GAG SEEN ON SUB SINKING

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—The sensational charge that the government was withholding news of a recent near catastrophe involving a new French submarine was made by the Socialist organ Le Populaire today.

Guaranteeing the authenticity of its information, Le Populaire stated that the new submarine Argo, on a trial trip shortly after its completion at Nantes, plunged to the bottom off the coast of Brest and remained there for 18 hours, unable to rise.

The crew members believed they were doomed to die, the paper stated, and the terrifying belief caused the death of one sailor and drove a civilian worker mad.

HUNTS LOST FATHER

Son Gone 24 Years Returns to Old Home Here

Seeking his father, from whom he was separated when aged about six months, Gustave F. Hildebrand, 24, was in Pittsburgh today. His father, Hildebrand said, had placed him in the Roselia Foundling Asylum, Bedford avenue, when his mother died not long after his birth.

Soon adopted, Hildebrand was given a second name, August Lightner, and taken to Indiana. Nine years ago he left the adopting family, worked in steel mills. Recently out of a job, he thought of finding his father. Going to 168 Eighteenth street, where he was born, according to his birth certificate, he found the house torn down. His mother's maiden name was Julia Frank. He says he will be grateful for information about his parents. His present address is 804 Warington avenue, Allentown.

With Herb Away Charlie Gets Gay; May Be Scolded

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Seems that Mr. Hoover's vacation refreshed Charley Curtis very much.

While the fish were biting in Virginia, Charley took a big bite in Kansas.

So it wouldn't surprise me if they had this conversation soon:

Herbert: "Charley, I see you changed my policies while I was gone."

Charles: "No, I used the regular G. O. P. cards. I just shuffled the deck a little."

Herbert: "Yeah, you rubbed the spots right off my resubmission aces. Say, are you my running mate or are you setting the pace?"

Charles: "Don't get mad, Herbie. You know a vice president ain't responsible for the cornerstones he dedicates."

Herbert: Well, when I go away and tell you to watch the store I don't want you to go in business for yourself. Don't forget we're for moderation."

Charles: "Okay, I won't forget we're for resubmission. Got any more orders?"

Herbert: "Yeah, if I happen to forget, remind me of it, will yah?"

CROSSING LAW BEING ENFORCED STERNLY

Numerous Accidents Bring Drastic Police Move

Due to severe accidents, some fatal in the past several months, State Highway patrolmen are warning motorists they are vigorously enforcing Act 403, article 10, section 1005, of the state law, which includes a provision motorists must keep to the right in crossing intersection or railroad grade crossings.

Police wish to remind the public they are not setting a trap for autoists, nor making arrests with the intention of swelling the state treasury by fines. They are attempting to eliminate accidents, patrolmen announced.

The act reads:

"In crossing an intersection of highway, or in crossing railway grade crossings, the driver of a vehicle, shall, at all times, cause such vehicle to travel on the right half of the highway unless such right half is obstructed or impassible."

This act provides a $10 fine and costs.

CAPT. MOLLISON NEW YORK'S TOAST . . . AT HOME: HIS WIFE, FLIER AMY JOHNSON

GLAD TO LAND AFTER SETTING RECORD

Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden, new queens of the sky, who landed late yesterday after setting a new women's endurance flight record of 8 days 4 hours 4 minutes over Long Island, tell their own stories in the following exclusive interviews with Universal Service.

By FRANCES MARSALIS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Flying in a circle, going around and around, with no one to call on, is a very monotonous procedure after the second day. And when Casey Jones sent up a message on the side of another plane, telling us to come down, we were so happy we almost tore the cabin apart. We shouted, we almost cried, there was so much joy in that cabin.

Then we realized it was over and became calm enough to circle Curtiss Field again, then head for home.

We were coming to earth for the two things we missed the most in those eight days—a chance to stretch our legs and a good, hot bath.

BATHS MISSED GREATLY

Our cabin necessarily was cramped, and we couldn't very well stretch out. Sometimes our legs got numb, so we rubbed them, starting again the sluggish circulation. As for baths—well, we took alcohol rubs regularly and that helped—but soap and hot water will never be replaced by a substitute. You've no idea how much a bath can be missed.

It was a terrible strain pumping the fuel. It was hard on the shoulders. Our rest to keep fit for this job—and the piloting—was spread out over the entire 24 hours of a day. During the night one of us would sleep two hours, then the other would take a nap. In the daytime, we stretched these sleeping periods to three hours.

COSMETICS HARD TO GET

We had an air mattress aboard, and this, narrow and not too comfortable, but most welcome when a person's all in, was what we slept on.

The ground force sent up whatever we asked for, but it took a long time to get cosmetics and hair pins. Men perhaps don't understand that a woman wants to be made up all the time.

Our food was good and there was plenty of it. Roast chicken, which we tore apart with our hands and ate with our fingers. You see we didn't have room to spread out a table and use knives and forks. We had steak, too, all cut up in little cubes, and potatoes and desserts.

By LOUISE THADEN

(Mrs. Louise Thaden, who collapsed as the plane was landed, was revived and, refreshed by a hot bath, added the following to Mrs. Marsalis' story.)

The first couple of nights thrilled us, especially watching the lights of New York and Long Island. But it wasn't long until even watching the lights, some blinking light stars in the sky, became boresome.

You have no idea how monotonous that gets, circling, circling, circling, go nowhere and having no one to stop and talk to.

As for myself, I am not going after any more endurance records. We are going to the Cleveland air meet and I. J. Fox, our backer, is going with us.

We are ready now for some fun, some society with other people.

TOWN HALL SITE RULING FOUGHT

Judge Thomas M. Marshall, of Common Pleas Court, has permitted County Solicitor J. P. Fife to file a motion to quash the mandamus obtained several weeks ago by the Schenley Farms Company, requiring the County Commissioners, County Controller and County Treasurer to carry out the contract entered into with it to buy the town hall site for more than $1,000,000.

It is averred in the motion the plaintiff's petition does not present the substance of a case for mandamus; that the defendants are not charged with an abuse of their official discretion and neither does it allege the defendants have acted dishonestly or fraudulently in refusing to sell the town hall bonds.

The petition, it is also averred, disclosed that the plaintiff's title to the property it seeks to sell and convey to the county is not marketable and is doubtful under the law.

Man's Shouts Rout 3 Thugs in Holdup

Three thugs who attempted to hold up H. Dzesa in front of his home, 5437 Black street, early today, fled when the victim called for help, police were told. Dzesa said the men struck him and fled when he yelled.

STEAM ROLLER FALLS ON HILL

James Vaughter, of 1163 Fulton street, operator of a steam roller on the Mt. Washington road extension project, leaped to safety as the machine toppled down a 25-foot embankment.

When a slag fill started to slip, a tractor was attached to the roller to haul it out. The cable broke and the roller toppled half way down the embankment.

Tubs and Fixtures Stolen From Houses

Four vacant dwellings, at 1212, 1218, 1221 and 1223 Irwin avenue, have been stripped by burglars of bathtubs and plumbing fixtures, valued at $500, according to police report. The houses, owned by the Louise M. Phillips estate, were entered between August 15 and August 22, police were informed.

ings over a nation-wide radio hookup. The four scholarship winners, tremendously embarrassed, were called to the microphone to say a few words. Fifteen-year-old Raymond Smith stammered:

"I am going to make this snappy, for my knees are about to give way under me. Hello, Mother and Dad."

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, gave the address of welcome, and W. A. Fisher, president of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, presented the scholarship awards.

Congratulatory messages were received from President Hoover, the Prince of Wales, Mussolini, Lieut. Gov. W. L. Walsh of Canada, and the Governors of the states.

Among the distinguished guests were Daniel Carter Beard, national commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America; John A. Stiles, chief executive commissioner of the Boy Scouts of Canada, and the presidents and deans of numerous colleges.

Officers of the Craftsman's Guild were given a few bad hours yesterday by the news that one of the Canadian winners, Fred J. Meester, 15, of Edmonton, had been refused admission to the United States by immigration officials here because he was born in Holland.

Message after message was sent to Washington in behalf of the boy, with the result that the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Commerce and the Secretary of Labor all came to the rescue. Fred was admitted and was given an ovation when he joined the END OF A WILD CHASE!

POLICE PURSUERS WITH THEIR ROPED CATCH IN WEST END

Jobless Man Praised As Parent, but Judge Rules Against Him

Twin boys, Herbert and William Bales, Jr., walked out of Judge Thomas M. Marshall's court room today with their mother, Elva May Bales. They were crying.

Four hours before they had come in with their father, William Bales, of 201 Sweetbriar street.

They spent much of the interim playing around the feet of their parents who, seated on opposite sides of the counsel table, were battling for their custody.

But when it came time for them to go, the twins clung tightly to their father.

It was an indication of the mother's contention—strangely supported, too, by the father—that the twin boys were being weaned away from her by conditions mainly attributable to unemployment.

Judge Marshall recognizing this in his order, decreed that the boys should be with the mother, excepting Sunday afternoon, until such times as the father can set up a home for the mother and the boys—just the four.

Mrs. Bales said when the twins were 8 months old she started a beauty parlor to aid the family funds. Her husband testified the shop had made little profit.

Last fall Bales lost his job, and his wife went to work at the City Hospital at Mayview, while he took the children to his house, occupied by his three sisters. Infrequent visits widened the gap between them. A climax came two weeks ago when a neighbor told Mrs. Bales one of the twins was sick. She visited the boy, and a quarrel with Bales' sister, it was testified, ensued. She sued for custody.

Judge Marshall recognized in Bales a father. But he declared that, depending a great deal on Mrs. Bales' pay envelope, without the mother the boys might starve. He gave Bales permission to visit his sons any time he pleased.

Attorney Benjamin Lencher represented the wife and Louis Little the husband.

Steam Giant After Toppling Downhill

STEER RUNNING WILD SHOT

Has anybody lost a steer—a two-horned one weighing half a ton, capable of running rings around three police radio crews?

This steer tramped through a dozen North Side gardens. He swam the Ohio River, and was captured only after he had stumbled and fallen in the yard of a startled McKees Rocks resident.

Over the police radio sped the news that the steer was strolling about Allegheny and Western avenues. Three crews arrived, deserted their cars and gave chase. Hundreds of pedestrians joined in.

At West North avenue they had him cornered. But he plunged into the Ohio River and swam away.

From the West End he strolled to Chartiers avenue and over a bridge. He fell into the yard of John Bargi at 107 Chartiers avenue. The police pounced on the fugitive and tied him up.

In the end, his stubbornness brought about his death from a policeman's bullet. He refused to get into a truck that was to have carried him somewhere, so they made beef out of him in the rear of 100 Chartiers avenue.

CITY AWARDS VIADUCT JOB

Four city contracts totaling $39,768.65 were awarded to low bidders today by Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department.

With the letting of a contract for construction of a second viaduct to the McClintic-Marshall Corporation, work on the Mt. Washington roadway extension, from the Liberty tunnel to South Tenth street, is on the way to completion, Lang declared. The job is being done as an emergency relief project to provide jobs for the unemployed. Estimated cost is in excess of $900,000.

The McClintic-Marshall bid for the viaduct steel work was $20,037. Public works engineers estimated cost at $40,000, but the successful bid was little more than half that figure. The low figure is said to be due to fall of commodity prices.

Other contracts awarded included construction of a new bridge over the B. & O. railroad in Schenley Park, to the Fort Pitt Malleable Iron Company, to cost $15,851.40; repairs at the city filtration plant, to Casper Colosimo & Sons, for $3,490, and concrete repairs to the Larimer Avenue Bridge, to John Masi Company, for $390.25.

OFFICERS OVER 60 RETAINED IN SHAKEUP

Eighteen city policemen over 60 years of age were retained on duty in Mayor Charles H. Kline's recent police and fire bureau shakeup on "economy grounds" while scores of younger men were fired, a list prepared for Council revealed today.

The list was prepared by Public Safety Director James M. Clark, after Councilman P. J. McArdle demanded it several weeks ago, when secrecy surrounded the dismissals. No reason for the delay in preparing the list was given by the Department of Public Safety.

On the other hand, 38 men out of 49, according to the report—all under 60 years of age—were pensioned, while the older men were permitted to remain on duty.

Of the total of 72 men discharged, 26 were 40 or over. In one instance, an officer aged 64 years, with only three years' service, was dismissed. He was August Schmidt.

Among those retained despite the apparent efficiency of the younger men, was an officer aged 72 years, eligible for pension. Nearly all 18 men over 60 retained were eligible for pensions.

Among those kept at work were William Demmell, 55, five years' service; Fred Walz, 54, five years; H. Ruppert, 61, five years; Adam Roche, 61, five years; N. Link, 63, five years; Philip Koegler, 59, five years; Steve Piatkowski, 58, 18 years; John Lorich, 65, 26 years; Patrick J. Mangen, 64, 28 years; E. H. Reatchlous, 67, 29 years; Hugh Duffy, 72, 39 years; James Williams, 68, 39 years; G. Schindel, 66, 35 years, and Michael F. Mahoney, 70, 34 years.

In the Bureau of Fire, headed by Chief Richard L. Smith, the younger men did not fare quite so badly, the report disclosed.

However, 16 firemen 50 years of age were pensioned and two over 60. In the list of dismissals 31 men under 47 years of age were let out, with their ages ranging from 26 to 37.

Two firemen, William Brophy, 61, with 32 years' service, and John K. Foster, 62, with 29 years' service, both eligible for pension, were kept on the rolls at the expense of younger men.

Council will study the report at an early meeting, it was indicated today.

Death of Sister Shatters Joy Of Miner Winning $3,500 Prize

HOBART GILLESPIE — JOE WALSH

JOE: "THANK YOU, MR. GILLESPIE; I'LL HELP SISTER" . . . . . HIS SISTER DIED

Joy and sorrow came hand in hand to Joe Walsh, young coal miner of Bobtown, Pa. Within a few hours he ran a gamut of human experience from extreme elation to extreme sorrow.

Saturday morning he was up bright and early. In a few hours he would have a check for $3,500. It all started when he saw an advertisement in the Sunday Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on January 17. It read:

"What Will You Do With $3,000 If I Give It to You?"

SPURRED ON BY SUCCESS

The natural curiosity of his 26 years, stimulated by the scarcity of work in the Shannopin mine, caused him to answer the ad. Going among his friends in the mining towns of Port Marion, Bobtown and vicinity, he sold enough Health-O household products for a Cincinnati (O.) company to get $1,800 in cash prizes and commissions up to August 1.

GRAND PRIZE FUTILE

The first thing Joe planned to do was get a special nurse for his sister, Anna, 17, who was taken to a Uniontown hospital with pneumonia a few hours before he received the check. He rushed to her bedside to tell her the good news. His mother and father were there. They were crying. The nurse said Anna was going to die. Joe looked at the check in his hand. The tears in his eyes indicated he would gladly have exchanged the money for his sister's life.

But Anna died. Within 12 short hours, Joe Walsh experienced the happiest and the saddest moments of his life. He said:

"That's life. Joy and sorrow. I wanted Anna to get better, so I could buy her a pretty new dress. But now I have to buy her a casket instead."

MOTORIST HELD ON GUN CHARGE

Charged with pointing a gun, William R. Matthews, 30, Perrysville road, Ross Township, was held for court yesterday by Alderman Edward Haas, West Liberty avenue. He posted $1,000 bond.

Fred Hannan, Miltenberger street, testified Matthews' automobile bumped his at Hazel and Elm streets, early Sunday. Hannan said he drove on, but at Elm street and Fifth avenue Matthews bumped him again, a dispute following. Matthews then drew a gun, according to Hannan, saying:

"I have a permit to carry firearms, so you'd better keep going."

Four companions of Matthews, arrested and fined $10 and costs, gave their names as Charles Wiesiskel, 341 Jacks Run road; William Thomas, Kendall avenue, Bellevue; Paul Sweeney, 1920 West Liberty avenue, and Lester Good, no address.

WATT CUTTING BRINGS LIGHT BILL SAVING

Albert B. Davidson, president of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association, today pointed out that domestic users of electricity may save money by reducing the candlepower of lamps.

Large corporations, including the power companies themselves, have drastically cut their light bills by this plan and the public may do so also, Davidson asserted.

While a campaign has been waged for months to obtain lower rates there is little likelihood that the utilities will make a reduction, he said. Davidson urged:

"Let the public reduce the candlepower of their lamps in their homes. Let them save electricity in every way. They have been too liberal, too careless, for years.

"The big power companies have been receiving special concessions for years. Yet they were the first to economize in electricity."

LEFTIES BLIND BUCS TO OTHER TYPE

THE SOUTHPAW PLAGUE has worked out two ways to the disadvantage of the Pirates. Not only have left-hand pitchers administered 13 of the 19 defeats suffered by the Bucs in their last 23 games, but as a result of facing the southsiders so often George Gibson's men find right-hand pitching so much of an oddity that they can't beat an orthodox chucker when they get into competition with one of that type. Waite Hoyt yesterday became the sixth right-hander to start against the locals since the slump began, and the Bucs were defeated in all six games.

Waite Hoyt

Flint Rhem beat them 18 to 5 in Philadelphia on August 1. Harry Seibold was chasen in the first inning at Boston on August 7, but Ben Cantwell, who relieved him, went on to a 7-to-6 victory after the Pirates had gained a four-run lead. Two days later, Huck Betts floored them in the same city, 4 to 0. Lon Warneke was lifted from the game here on August 11, but Guy Bush finished to win for the Cubs in 10 innings, 3 to 2. Last Saturday Herman Bell took their measure for the Giants here, 8 to 1, and yesterday Hoyt won a 4-to-3 decision over them. The Bucs have become so accustomed to batting against left-handers that now they can't hit the right-handers.

NATURALLY, THE HOCKEY faithful in the Pittsburgh district would relish another chance to see the big-timers of the ice game in action, but they are not taking it for granted that they will get that opportunity on the strength of the Montreal announcement that the National League will again include this city.

The fans can't imagine any home promoters taking such a chance at this time. Major league hockey will go over here only when there is a rink large enough to accommodate crowds of profitable size. The overhead of a winning club would be too heavy to be met by the gates possible in a small rink, and a cheap or losing club could not look for any very strong patronage.

ONE THING THAT the Yankees would like to accomplish, if they can't go through the full season as the only club in the major leagues never shut out by an opponent, is to beat the record they made in 1927 for escaping whitewash.

The Yanks of that year, who cleaned up the Pirates in four straight games in the world series, played 128 games before Lefty Grove administered their first shutout on September 1, 3 to 0. They have survived 119 engagements so far without being blanked, and 10 more will put them over the line.

MORE TROUBLE FOR the Pirates in the offing. Their chief hoodoos, the pesky Phils, will be here tomorrow for two single games followed by a doubleheader on Thursday, and unless there is a vast change in the way things have been going for a long time it may be just too bad for the Bucs. On their first visit this season, the Quakers grabbed the two games played, and on the second trip they snatched three out of five. In Philadelphia they have taken six out of eight, making 11 out of 15 for the season to date, and in two years they have walloped the Picaroons 24 times in 37 tangles. It was their last cleanup of four straight in Quakertown that started the Pirates' streak of 10 defeats in a row.

ADMITTEDLY IT WAS a lucky year for such pitchers as Danny MacFayden and Wilcy Moore, who were kicked upstairs by being transferred from the tailend Red Sox to the Yankees, with a prospective share in the world series spoils, but how about Charley Devens?

Charley Devens

MacFayden and Moore are at least doing some pitching while the Yanks are sewing up the American League pennant, but Devens is only a spectator. Joe McCarthy says he will not use the former Harvard star in a championship game before the flag is cinched, no matter how big a lead the club may gain. Yet Devens will share equally with the regulars in the world series proceeds.

WITH THE SNUG bonus he received for signing, his salary, and a series cut, Devens stands to clean up from $12,000 to $15,000, without doing any real work save pitching in a few exhibition games. His contract provided that he could not be farmed out this year.

At that, Devens doesn't need the money, and New York critics doubt that he will consent to be shipped to the minors in 1933 for seasoning. He likes baseball for the fun it affords, but he leans to architecture as a profession and may go abroad to study.

SLOWLY REGAINING HIS strength in French Hospital, New York, after the amputation of one of his legs, Marty McCue numbers among his visitors many of the figures in the boxing world. For though McCue's prominence in late years has been gained in political circles, particularly as a New York state senator, in which capacity he was a factor in pushing through the present boxing law in the Empire State, he was a fighter himself earlier in life. At his peak he was rated among the best in the game, and from 1894 to 1899 he met most of the leading battlers of that period from 122 to 130 pounds.

M'CUE WAS ONE of the few glovemen to defeat the late Oscar Gardner, ranked among the best little fighters in history, getting a decision over Gardner in 25 rounds at Brooklyn. Jack McClelland, Pittsburgh's great featherweight of those days, also was one of Marty's opponents, fighting him to a draw in 20 rounds at Brooklyn on September 1, 1899.

Another boxer of this sector to meet McCue was Jimmy Reeder, of New Castle, whom Marty defeated in 11 rounds at Brooklyn two months after the McClelland fight. Among the others met by McCue were Kid McPartland, Joe Bernstein, Sammy Kelly, Tommy White, Jack Hamilton, Elwood McCloskey, Billy Whistler, Joe Fairburn, Dave Sullivan and Patsy Sweeney. McCue is now 56.

IT IS NOW to be expected that shrewd promoters around the country will try at once to cash in on the reputations and wide publicity that some of the Olympic heroes gained at Los Angeles. There is certain to be some strong bidding in an attempt to induce certain star athletes to turn pro.

It's the promoter that professionalizes the performers with "big" names, and it may be no easy matter for the amateur powers to keep some of the simon pures from yielding to the temptation that will be thrown in front of them.

Juan Carlos Zabala

FOR INSTANCE, THERE'S Juan Carlos Zabala, the 19-year-old sensation from the Argentine, whose victory in the Olympic Marathon put him in the hall of fame with Loues, Teato, Hicks, Sherring, Hayes, McArthur, Kohlemainen, Stenroos and El Ouafi, previous distance winners of the classic. The promoters will tell him how he can turn his renown to fat financial profit. There was a great rush of Marathon running and contests at shorter distances after the London Olympics in 1908, when Johnny Hayes was proclaimed the marathon victor because Dorando was helped across the finish line. Hayes, Dorando, St. Yves and others were promoted throughout this country and several of them appeared in races in Pittsburgh. The project didn't flourish for long, and conditions do not promise any great measure of success at present.

LINDSAY BOYD, MRS. RILEY DEFEATED

By TOM BIRKS

Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth, of Oakmont, defeated by Miss Anjeannette Hunter, also of Oakmont, in the final last year, shot brilliant golf to dethrone Miss Hunter in the first round of match play in the Western Pennsylvania women's golf championship tournament at the Fox Chapel Golf Club today.

Mrs. Wadsworth's winning margin was 2 and 1.

Miss Hunter, who has played comparatively little golf recently because of the illness of a member of her family, had to participate in a play-off this morning to get into the title flight after she, Mrs. B. R. Shriver, Mrs. Arch Irwin and Miss G. Bell had emerged in a deadlock for the last two qaulifying berths yesterday. Mrs. Shriver also was successful in the play-off.

Mrs. Wadsworth's match with Miss Hunter was close all the way. The cards:

MEDALIST ADVANCES

Mrs. Louis K. Friedman, Westmoreland Club champion, who won medalist honors yesterday with an 86, advanced into the second round by eliminating Mrs. Shriver, the only home club representative, in the title flight, 3 and 1.

Miss Barbara Warmcastle, of the Field Club, and Miss Violet Trautman, of the Country Club, of Pittsburgh, emerged victorious in matches in which young and accomplished stars were opposed. Miss Trautman, 4 down after eight holes, had to stage a spectacular rally to defeat Miss Lindsay Boyd, of Montour Heights, 2 and 1, and Miss Warmcastle, a strong little favorite, defeated Miss Lois Hollander, of Westmoreland, by the same margin.

MRS. CAMPBELL WINS

Mrs. Frank Campbell, of Stanton Heights, former champion, advanced at the expense of Mrs. F. C. Lewars, of the Field Club, 7 and 6, and Mrs. F. M. Sloan, of Edgewood, won over Mrs. H. W. Christie, of Butler, 4 and 3.

In other matches in the championship flight Mrs. W. Hitter, of Johnstown, upset the dope by defeating Mrs. L. G. Riley, Edgewood ace, 1 up, and Mrs. L. G. Boggs, Chartiers Heights, defeated Mrs. C. I. Wendt, Field Club, 1 up.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON: A RECORD LOSS—Francoise-Athenais de Rochochouart Marquise de Montespan (1641-1707) was for seven years the mistress of King Louis XIV of France, who purchased her from her husband for the sum of 200,000 livres ($40,000) in addition to a jail sentence in the Bastille. The King assigned to her the entire revenue from the Tobacco Monopoly. With the colossal sums at her disposal the Marquise led a life of frenetic luxury and pomp. Particularly costly were the receptions she gave to the aristocracy of the French capital. A feature of these receptions were card games for exorbitant stakes. Mme. de Montespan lost 7,000,000 livres in a single evening.

SIXTY LEADER IN GOLF PLAY

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—With all first round leaders among the late starters, Billy Sixty, of Milwaukee, and Harry Laveau, of Rockford, topped the field in the battle for the Western Amatuer golf medal today with 36-hole totls of 148.

Sixty came in with a smart 72 today to post his low 36-hole tally while Laveau fell to a 76 after getting a 72 yesterday. Harry Eichelberger, of Los Angeles, leader of the first round with apar cracking 70, was a lte starter along with the 71 shooting brigade, Johnny Leman and George Dawson, of Chicago.

Early scores today were lower generally, than yesterday, with another perfect day for golf prevailing and indications were that the qualifying limit would be somewhere within 150 and 152.

Harry Laveau, Rockford	72	76—148
Billy Sixty, Milwaukee	76	72—148
Art Sweet, Chicago	75	77—152
P. Stalter, Kansas City	81	75—156
Bob Harlow, Buffalo, N. Y.	85	79—164
Keith Young, Lafayette, Ind.	83	86—169
W. Zweiner, Detroit	80	80—160

Belanger Stops Jimmy Slattery

BUFFALO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Charley Belanger, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, last night stopped Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, former boss of the light-heavyweight division, in two rounds, and took only 55 seconds of the second.

Slattery, showing little in his comeback attempt, was helpless after Belanger knocked him down with a right to the jaw in the first minute of the battle, and battered him from pillar to post.

Par for the final three holes was 4-5-4, and Dutra finished in 3-4-3 for 67-71—138.

BUCS, GIANTS DIVIDE IN DUAL BILL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Giants will say a season's farewell to Forbes Field this afternoon when they take on the Pirates in a single game. The event has no holiday aspect whatever, for the Giants are still a second-division ball team and the Pirates have been acting like cellar champs in the last three weeks.

Adam Comorosky struck a three-run homer in the first game of yesterday to give the Pirates a victory, but the stupid play of the Buccos crept out in the closing fracas and the dual bill was one of those 50-50 things. The Pirates won the opener, 6-1, but lost the nightcap, 4-3.

BUC BUNTS FUTILE

The Pirates bunted at the wrong time and when they bunted at the right time they could not get the ball on the ground. The fans became somewhat disgusted looking at the spectacle of major league players failing in a bunt play which should be practiced when a known weakness of this kind exists.

Well, anyhow, the Pirates will be lucky to land in any of the first division berths unless they snap out of it. When the hitters come through with a fair degree of consistency to give the pitchers a lead, the hurler in turn gives somebody a base on balls with the tying run at stake and the first thing we know the enemy is even with us or out in front. When a pitcher does turn in a shutout job he is lucky to get a single run to insure him a success.

The Chicago victory, while the Pirates were dividing with the Giants, gave Charley Grimm's team a lead of four and one-half games over the Bucs. To illustrate how inconsistent the Buccos have been since they arrived home it is only necessary to point out that the Buccos had a slight lead over the Bruins when they clashed in the Oakland Orchard one week ago last Thursday.

HUBBELL TO HURL

Manager Bill Terry, of the Giants, is expected to start his fourth lefthander of the six-game series this afternoon in an effort to land a fourth victory. Carl Hubbell threw the Buccos for a loss in the first clash, and he is likely to be on the slab today. Manager Gibson may pitch Larry French on two days' rest to offset the New York ace.

The Phillies are due in Pittsburgh tomorrow, four games being carded with the Shottonites. A dual bill will be staged Thursday, which is Ladies' Day. In many previous years the coming of the Quakers was looked upon as a time for a rush of victories by the home club, but since Dick Bartell took on the Philly livery the Quakers have made us look like a minor-league outfit.

Heinie Meine worked a five-hit game in the first clash of yesterday, the Giants scoring their only tally of the contest in the seventh on a single, a double and a long fly. Comorosky's four-sacker to center with two on in the fifth put the game on ice for the Pirates.

CHAGNON BEATEN

Leon Chagnon pitched just good enough to lose as he fought it out with Waite Hoyt in the closing contest. Chagnon connected for a three-bagger to left with two out in the second to score Earl Grace and put his club one run in front of the Giants, but the enemy hacked away at Leon and after forcing a deadlock in the fourth

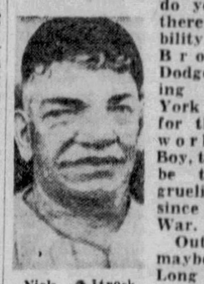
Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Don't think Uncle Nick has started smoking hasheesh, but do you realize there's a possibility of the Brooklyn Dodgers meeting the New York Yankees for this year's world series? Boy, that would be the most grueling thing since the Civil War.



Nick Altrock

Outside of maybe Huey Long and the goggle-eyed Marx Brother, there is nothing wilder than a Brooklyn ball fan. If their Dodgers ever got to fighting the Yanks, only restricted immigration at one end of Brooklyn Bridge and rubber pop bottles would prevent bloodshed.

However, a Dodger-Yank world series is an idea worth toying with. And if it ever comes to pass, I don't know whether I'd shout, "I told you so" or "God forbid!"

STRONG TEAM NEEDED FOR BIG LEAGUE ICE REVIVAL

LOCAL HOCKEY CLUB RETURNS TO NATIONAL

By CARL W. SHATTO

Local fandom today greeted with cheers the announcement that National League hockey was to be returned to Pittsburgh during the 1932-33 campaign, but, unfortunately, some of the cheers were of the Hoboken or Bronx varieties.

It is a certainty that the brand of hockey offered by the National League, the major league of the ice sport, is superior to that provided by the International League here for the last two years, but whether or not Pittsburgh will contribute much to the high plane of hockey in the big league is very much open to question.

SUCCESS NOT ASSURED

When National League hockey first was given a trial here it met with no particular success for the simple reason that the Pittsburgh team was not a winning team. In its last season here the locals were such chronic losers that the attendance fell off to virtually nothing.

Two years ago Pittsburgh's National League franchise and players were transferred to Philadelphia. The former Pittsburgh stalwarts displayed an astounding capacity for losing games in the Quaker City. They found, in fact, that they could drop decisions much more consistently in Philadelphia than they could in Pittsburgh, and the gentlemen back of the club found that they could drop dollars just as rapidly and just as consistently.

In brief, losing hockey had no more appeal in Philadelphia than it did in Pittsburgh.

True, the Yellow Jackets, Pittsburgh's representatives in the International League for the last two years, did not win much more than half their games, but a team able to cop 50 per cent of its starts was hailed as a winner after the sorry showing of its predecessors.

ROONEY IN DEAL

Art Rooney, North Side politician and sportsman, and James Egan, of Boston, his business associate, were prepared to purchase the Pittsburgh International Leaguers from the banking interests now holding the club had the National League not voted to return big league hockey to this city.

James F. Callahan, local attorney, one of the directors of the National League and leader of the new ice entry, today returned from the Toronto meeting with the announcement that the seating capacity at Duquesne Garden would be increased by approximately 4,000, and that the installation of rapid freezing apparatus would make the arena available for boxing shows in the intervals between the hockey playing dates.

He also said that a deal was under way whereby Pittsburgh was to obtain some skaters from the Montreal Maroons. This new talent will be needed, for it is planned to use the old Philadelphia team as the nucleus around which the new Pittsburgh entry will be built.

10-CLUB CIRCUIT

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The National Hockey League had returned to its 10-club status today with the re-entry of Pittsburgh and Ottawa, but where Pittsburgh's playing talent was to come from remained a moot question.

Re-entry of Ottawa caused little surprise but Pittsburgh's was entirely unexpected. The Yellow Jackets were represented at yesterday's semi-annual meeting of the board of governors by J. F. Callaghan, listed as president of the club. He has been associated, however, with Bill Dwyer, of the New York Americans, and some observers believed it possible the New Yorkers were supporting the Steel City's return to the fold.

The Detroit Falcons sought reinstatement of some players from the Chicago Shamrocks of the American League, a so-called "outlaw" organization, but the league declined pending adjustment of certain disputes with the mid-Western circuit. The players in question were Brydson, Boswell, MacKenzie, McFayden and Williams.

JOHNSON STOPPED

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Tiger Jack Fox, Terre Haute Negro, knocked out Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, here last night in the last round of a 12-round bout. In the eleventh, Johnson was on the floor twice for counts of seven and nine.

Commy's Timely Homer

LLOYD WANER AND VAUGHAN SCORE ON LONG DRIVE

SENATORS MAY OUST WALTER JOHNSON

By DAVIS J. WALSH

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—Twenty-five years of faithful service in baseball, it seems, is soon to be rewarded in the customary manner. Walter Johnson, as definitely associated with Washington as Pennsylvania avenue and the monument, is to be cast off at the end of the year in favor of a manager who can be depended upon not to be too nice a human being and, in this way, earn the respect of his fellow men.

Briefly, the situation is supposed to be this:

1. That Johnson, tolerant, gentle and too innately mild, has failed to assert his authority as a manager should and must.

2. That Joe Judge and Sam Rice, two life-long employes of the club, may receive some consideration for the position.

3. That Stanley Harris, the former court favorite who was banished in a moment of spleen, would receive more than either, if Frank Navin could per suaded to relinquish his lien upon Harris' services.

Harris is the young man who won Washington's only pennants in 1924 and 1925 and then went slightly wire-haired. It wasn't vanity or ego. He simply acquired too much success too soon and had to find out as time went on that life was just another astrakhan collar.

Fight Results

Chicago Ring Stars Win Over Italians

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The Chicago amateur champions defeated the Italian Olympic boxing team last night 4 matches to 3 in the Chicago Stadium. Only seven matches were fought, as Vito Melis, Italian flyweight, was injured in training and could not compete.

Frankie May, Chicago featherweight, and Gastare Alessandri, of Italy, waged a ding-dong battle as did Edelweis Rodriquez, of Italy, and George Goodman, Chicago bantamweight. May and Rodriquez got the decision.

ROSENBLOOM WINS

LAUREL, Md., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom won a decision from Bob Godwin, of Georgia, in a 10-round fight last night, but his light-heavyweight title was not at stake. Maxie was given six of the 10 rounds. Considerable booing greeted the referee's decision after the Georgian had given the champion a tough fight.

LEFTY GRIMM SIGNS 1933 CONTRACT

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Charley Grimm, successor to Rogers Hornsby as manager of the Chicago Cubs, was signed today to lead the team in 1933. The contract was for one year.

William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, declined to reveal the terms of the contract offered Grimm, but it was understood he received a substantial increase. Before succeeding Hornsby, Grimm had been playing first base with the club for several years.

Since Grimm assumed the management, the Cubs have won 15 out of 20 games played, shooting to the top of the National League pennant race.

Grimm took over the management of the Cubs in Philadelphia August 2 after Hornsby had been dismissed because, it was later revealed, he had borrowed various amounts of money from members of the team and also had been suspected of playing the races.

they made the sixth round produce two runs which put them in the lead.

Dave Barbee batted for Bill Harris as the Pirates started the last half of the ninth with a run needed to tie. Dave drove the ball into the rightfield stands, but the clout was foul by a narrow margin and then Dixie Dave missed a third strike. This break sank the Pirates in the nightcap.

CHILLYSAUCE

Until Paul Waner ran into his slump, the National League sported three rightfielders who would have to be considered in a ballot to name the most valuable player in the league. Mel Ott, Chick Klein and Brother Paul had been making the position stand out as one of the most important in the lineup, while Hazen Cuyler, one of the greatest outfielders baseball has produced was starring in a defensive way despite a falling off in his batting.

Without wishing to disparage Klein, P. Waner or Cuyler, I would choose the sturdy little Giant for top honors if I were casting the deciding vote this year. It is extremely difficult for an outfielder to be the "most valuable," but Ott plays the outfield like an infielder so far as ground balls are concerned; he is the best billiard player in the league in handling the carroms and there is no better arm in baseball.

Ross Young typified McGraw's favorite athlete, yet the late great Texan didn't have a thing on Ott, in fact, I believe Ott is a harder and surer hitter and perhaps he has a bit more natural ability than had his fearless predecessor. By getting the jump on balls hit to his right in the short-wall parks, Ott turns potential triples into putouts almost daily, and he appears to have the various walls studied to perfection. Fans at Forbes Field yesterday were amazed when Traynor's carom actually got away from the sure-fire player.

The Giants enjoy one of the best pasture patrols in the league. Lindstrom plays the middle range like an artist, and Moore in left field appears to be a finished performer in every way.

Speaking of right fielders, it goes without saying that Chuck Klein has admirers who would seriously contest any gesture that would place Ott above the powerful Quaker. I realize it is drawing a fine, maybe an unfair, line in putting the four stars on Gen. Ott, of Louisiana, but to me there is a certain finesse in the defense work of the southern boy that overshadows Klein a bit.

Both Klein and Ott, hitting in 77 games in bandbox parks, have adopted a close stance. In other words, they stand almost on top of the plate so that they can pull a ball on the outside corner into the right field stands. Consequently neither one hits to left field except on rare occasions.

Bill Terry is a more natural batter than either of the stars mentioned, for Bill stands in a normal manner at the plate and he hits the ball where they are pitched. Bill's drives to left center are spanked as hard as though they were walloped by a right-hand slugger.

Terry, by the way, is causing Lefty O'Doul some annoyance. Bill informed Lefty that he was out to overtake him. So Lefty is stepping on the gas. Terry almost knocked Tony Piet into Panther Hollow with a hot liner in the first game, but Tony held the ball after making a one-hand stab.

STALE GAS HANDCUFFS YOUR MOTOR

ONLY fresh GAS UNLEASHES FULL POWER

Staleness steals the power of gasoline. Little by little, the lighter parts—important "easy starting" elements—evaporate! Also a chemical change takes place—so that, as staleness increases, power decreases!

And the staler the gas, the more it knocks—and the stickier it is—more apt to foul a motor.

The whole petroleum industry has long sought a way to stop gasoline deterioration. Now Gulf announces a system that assures every motorist of getting FRESH-MADE gasoline! How?

By making the best possible gasoline and refining out certain complex elements that cause fast deterioration.

SPEED! The whole Gulf organization is geared to it. Huge Gulf refineries in many sections of the country put every Gulf filling station close to a source of FRESH gasoline. A vast fleet of tank trucks speeds FRESH gas to Gulf pumps every day.

Get FULL power for your gasoline dollar. Get FRESH-MADE gas—delivered FRESH. Get Gulf exclusively—and you'll have a motor that's faster. A motor that's cleaner. And quieter.

YANKS MAY ESCAPE SHUTOUT THIS SEASON

MARBERRY, GROVE TWIRL FINE GAMES

Associated Press

It seems likely the Yankees, in addition to winning the American League flag in a canter, will go right on and round out the campaign without having tasted a shutout defeat.

They have scored at least one run in each of their 119 engagements to date, and with the big guns of their attack, Ruth and Gehrig, going better every day, opposing pitchers apparently face a hopeless task in trying to blank Joe McCarthy's sluggers.

No big league club ever has completed a season without at least one shutout and only two, Pittsburgh of 1901 and the Yankees of 1927, have had the minimum of one white washing. The Yanks have only 36 games to go to crack the record.

BROWNS VICTORS

Irving (Bump) Hadley, journeyman righthander of the St. Louis Browns, came mighty near applying the brakes yesterday when he set the leaders down, 5 to 1, on four widely scattered hits. Earle Combs saved the day for the Yanks when he tripled in the first inning and scored on an infield out.

The next most startling performance of the day was that of Lefty Grove in piloting the Athletics to an 8-to-1 victory over the White Sox. In addition to pitching very high-class ball, he belted a home run with two aboard and scored two runs.

Fred (Lugs) Marberry, of the Washington Senators turned Cleveland back with one hit, a single by Dick Porter in the first inning, and beat the Indians, 4 to 0. Only four men reached first base off the Senator star, the other three on walks, and he never was in danger of being scored upon.

Tom Oliver's double in the ninth inning, with two on base, gave the Boston Red Sox a 6-to-5 triumph over Detroit.

CUBS GAIN GROUND

The Chicago Cubs went three full lengths ahead of the field in the National League by trimming the Phillies, 8 to 4, while Brooklyn was idle and Pittsburgh was splitting a pair with the Giants.

Heine Meine allowed but five hits in pitching the Pirates to a 6-to-1 win over the Giants in the first tilt and was helped along by Adam Comorosky, who hit a home run with two on base. The Giants took the nightcap, 4 to 3, when they got to Chagnon for two runs in the sixth inning. Waite Hoyt went the route for the winners.

Boston and St. Louis likewise broke even, the Braves slugging Derringer and Haines for a 7-to-2 victory in the first and the Cardinals taking the second, 3 to 0, as Tex Carleton gained his second triumph of the series.

Brooklyn and Cincinnati were idle.

AL GRAYBER — FRANK NOVAK

LEFT HOOK SENDS NORTH SIDER TO CANVAS FOR NO COUNT IN FIRST ROUND OF FEATURE BATTLE AT HICKEY PARK

BRITISH NET TEAM LOSES

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The lambs were fed to the lions in the opening round of the fifty-first annual National doubles tennis championship yesterday at Longwood and it was one of the dullest spectacles of the current season.

The entry list was amazing, containing nine of the world's best 10 players, a handful of near-greats and a whole flock of unknowns. Almost half of the 32 teams would have found trouble in a minor tourney but they advanced to the slaughter gamely.

Only one of the 16 opening matches was tight enough to be interesting but in that play E. W. Feibleman, of New York, and Jake Hess, of Fort Worth, Tex., did not surprise many by eliminating the fourth and last seeded foreign entry, John S. Oliff and Ted Avory, of England, in a five-setter, 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 3-6, 6-1.

France's great Henri Cochet, missing from the national team play since 1928, teamed with his countryman, Marcel Bernard, 18-year-old southpaw, to uphold their seeded prestige by eliminating R. R. and R. B. Thurber, of Salem, with the fewest possible strokes, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

Most of the other favorites floundered about considerably. They had an opportunity to practice against weak competition and took advantage of such rare fortune. The defending champions, Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, won in straight sets over the Boston veterans, G. Colbert Ganer and Henry R. Guild, the tournament's referee, 9-7, 6-3, 6-3.

FIVE SHOOTERS BREAK 200

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Trapshooters continued their assault on perfect scores today as the North American clay target championships for men and women got under way. This was the fourth day's program of the Grand American tournament.

Five marksmen out of the first 100 to reach the half-way mark had shattered all of their targets. The championships are decided at 200 targets.

The perfect marksmen were Dr. H. R. Peasley, Des Moines, Ia.; Walter Beaver, Berwyn, Pa.; William Hoon, Jewell, Ia.; Dr. R. A. Voisinet, Union City, Ind., and John Rake, Monroe, N. Y.

Rake, who engaged in a world record shootoff of 250 targets yesterday with Ed Martin, of Columbus, Wis., to decide fourth place in Class A, won the shootoff this morning.

Miss Marie Kautzky, Fort Dodge, Ia., took an early lead among the women shooters at the halfway mark by shattering 96 out of a possible 100. Miss Jeanette Jay, Waverly, Ia., defending the North American women's title, slipped badly on her first hundred, breaking only 89.

Police Probe Sponging Of Saratoga Favorite

By TOM THORP
International News Service.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 23.—Investigation of the "sponging" of the horse Panetian here during the early morning hours yesterday was pushed today. Pinkerton detectives reported that they are on the trail of the miscreants and expected to make an arrest within a short time.

Panetian was withdrawn from the Burgomaster Handicap, the fourth race on the program yesterday, after the thoroughbred had been found in his stall in bad condition. Trainer George Arvin, after making a quick investigation, discovered that his charge had been tampered with and called in the track physician. It was the opinion of the veterinary that Panetian had been "sponged," but the sponge used had not been found in his nostrils.

Belief is that the sponge used had been dislodged in some manner and swept away with the bedding used in Panetian's stall or that the obstacle had slipped into the digestive tract of the animal.

Those who had an active part in the "sponging" of Panetian defeated their own efforts by their carelessness in the manner of inserting the sponge. The usual procedure of spongers is to use a few sheets of newspaper rolled very tight. They insert the sponge in the nostril of a thoroughbred and push it as far out of sight as possible.

The miscreants yesterday used a long stick. This cut the horse's nostril and a groom noticed a small trickle of blood from the animal's nostril, leading to the investigation and failure of the plot.

Tampering with Panetian caused an investigation of the performances of other thoroughbreds which have raced far below their form on occasions during the meeting, notably the race of Morton L. Schwartz's Gusto, favorite for the rich Travers Stakes decided on Saturday in which he could not raise a respectable gallop.

Lightweight Grid League Is Formed

Formation of Spalding's Lightweight Football Conference, Sections 1 and 2, was assured last night when a dozen of the leading teams convened and discussed plans that will be adopted at the next meeting, Friday night.

Newcomers seeking the organized plan of competition this year, include St. Rosalia's Preps, Tarentum Firemen, New Kensington, Joe Vitelli's Stowe-Rox team, and Ambridge.

Rox Rangers, Oakland Community, East Liberty Papales, Kreigar and Marx, Broadway and Bloomfield Civics also attended last night's meeting. The representatives decided to do away with the percentage system and a flat guarantee will be given each team.

The conference race will be opened the last week in September.

Between Rounds

John Hernon, Hickey Park promoter, announced last night that he had signed Jimmy Belmont, Frank Klaus' slugger, from Braddock, as Ted Yarosz's opponent for the main go there next Monday night. This will be the third meeting between these two fighters. Ted defeated Jimmy at Oil City two years ago and last Christmas at Motor Square Garden.

The second bout is the only one open on the Greenlee Field card for Thursday night. Jules Beck, matchmaker, has Jack Wilson, hard-hitting middleweight of the North Side, paired with Frankie Gosaby, Negro, of Cleveland, for the main bout. Jackie Wilson, Negro bantamweight, of Homewood, is in with Joey Boask, of Chicago, for the eight-round semi-final, and Curley Klass, of the North Side, makes his pro debut in the opener against Jack Smiley, light-heavyweight, of the Hill.

Battling Gizzy's brother, who goes under the name of Young Gizzy, tops the amateur card at the Twenty-seventh Ward Republican Club, California avenue, tonight against Jean Pier, of the North Side A. C. Four other good bouts are on the bill.

Two games in the County League hold the attention of sandlotters this evening. The Scott Morgan nine, of Homewood, present league leader has a tough battle on its hands at Homestead when it meets the Potts nine, and the Millikens, of Wilkinsburg, successful in the first half race, cannot afford to lose any ground at Pitcairn.

In the City League race, Books fight to overtake the Thomas nine, and prevent a post-season playoff, will continue on the Salt Works grounds against Art Rooney's North Siders.

The Rooney aggregation may be going no place in particular, but winning ball games on that Chateau street lot is a tough problem for any club.

The two leaders remained in step last evening, both hanging up triumphs. Books walloped the Reliance Life nine, 8 to 2, and Thomas took an 8-to-3 decision from the North Siders.

In the County League, the Millikens nosed out the Jack Potts nine, 6 to 5, and in the City section of the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, West End trimmed Wilsons, 11 to 7, and Fineview defeated Hazelwood, 8 to 7.

Purdue Not Included On Indiana Slate

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Eighteen games are listed on the Indiana University 1932-33 basketball schedule, announced today, but the Crimson's old rival, Purdue, is not among them. The "round robin" system, used in the Big Ten, compels Purdue and Indiana to lay aside their basketball rivalry for the season.

The schedule includes 12 Conference games and six non-Conference contests. The University of Mexico is one of the non-Conference opponents. The schedule follows:

December 6—Wabash at Bloomington; December 9—Cincinnati at Bloomington; December 14—DePauw at Bloomington; December 20—Marquette at Milwaukee; January 3—Miami at Oxford, O.; January 7—Ohio State at Columbus; January 9—Chicago at Bloomington; January 14—Wisconsin at Bloomington; February 1—University of Mexico at Bloomington; February 6—Northwestern at Bloomington; February 11—Minnesota at Bloomington; February 13—Michigan at Bloomington; February 18—Wisconsin at Madison; February 20—Minnesota at Minneapolis; February 25—Chicago at Chicago; February 27—Northwestern at Evanston; March 4—Michigan at Ann Arbor; March 6—Ohio State at Bloomington.

NEW RECORD SET

CANNSTATT, Germany, Aug. 23.—(AP.) Paul Schwartz, German swimmer, today set a new European record for 200 meters breast stroke of 2 minutes 45.2 seconds. This is six-tenths of a second under Leonard Spence's world mark of 2.44.6 and three-tenths of a second under Reizo Koike's Olympic record of 2.44.9.

FAVORITES WIN IN NET PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Completion of first round and start of second round men's singles play, with inauguration of women's singles hostilities billed to follow in mid-afternoon, comprises today's card of action in the first annual County Recreation Bureau novice tennis tourney in progress since early yesterday on the six clay courts at South Park. Masculine tussling monopolizes the battle scene till 3:30 p. m., at which hour feminine luminaries take over the show and promise fast competition till dark.

Thirty-six man-to-man frays, plus 17 defaults, were accounted for between early morning and evening as tournament festivities got under way yesterday. Only one striking dope reversal startled the railbirds, Ed Grant, darkhorse entry, eliminating Dick Creighton, South Hills campaigner, 8-6, 4-6, 7-5. There were no upsets as 14 matches were reeled off today.

Entries for the annual Southern Pennsylvania net championships, beginning Thursday at the Westmont Tennis Club, Johnstown, must be in the hands of Chairman T. E. Owen no later than 9 o'clock tonight. Play will be sponsored in men's and women's singles and in men's and mixed doubles. Pittsburghers already listed for the Cambria classic include Billy O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace, Frank Broida, Pittsburgh Parks champion; Bud Leyda, Shannopin slasher; Andy Smeaton, former Duquesne University star, Eddie Alcorn, 1932 Pitt court captain, and the writer. It is likely, too, that Miriam Sullivan, Winged Head feminine performer, will carry Steel City colors into the women's singles division. Today's summary at South Park:

First round, men's singles—Milton King defeated William Kaster, 6-4, 6-1; Richard Dalzell defeated Albert Oakley, 6-0, 6-4; James Traa defeated Howard Campbell, 6-3, 8-6; Oliver W. Jones defeated James Magaw, 7-5, 2-6, 7-5; James Criswell defeated Robert McChirkin, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3; Earl Myers defeated William Parr, 6-1, 6-0; George Newhams defeated Kenneth Seaur, 6-0, 6-0; Henry Lehne defeated Jack Thomas, 8-6, 6-3; Fred Oprendek defeated Walter Ketterer, 7-5, 6-0; Herbert Soneson defeated Edward Gever, 6-1, 6-2; T. By JAMES MILLER

Amid a chorus of boos that lasted fully 15 minutes, keeping the announcer from introducing the semi-final fighters, George Panka, of Homestead, was declared the winner over Frank Novak, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night.

Panka deserved a better demonstration than greeted the decision, as he had a clear advantage at the finish.

The bout, a fast and hard-fought affair, was easily the best heavyweight show put on here this summer. It started out with a bang when Panka drove a hard left to Novak's chin that dropped Frank, but the latter was up without taking a count. The punch seemed to bring Novak to life, for he began punching Panka aplenty, hanging George on the ropes with his arms wrapped around his head for protection.

BATTLE HECTIC

After this hectic start, the bout became one of those rubber affairs, leaning towards Novak for a round and then Panka. This was the way it went until the eighth, and from then on George held the upper hand.

Panka was credited with winning the second, sixth, eighth, ninth and the last rounds, Novak the first, fourth and seventh, with the third and the fifth even.

Panka had Novak on the floor again in the eighth. This time a right smashed against Frank's chin and in the fall he twisted his right foot, aggravating an injury suffered last week in training. Novak was down for a count of two.

From then on Frank was very cautious with his bad foot, and Panka took advantage of this to outbox and outpunch his rival in the remaining heats.

PRAISE DUE NOVAK

Novak deserves much praise for his excellent showing against a man of Panka's experience. In the early rounds, Frank gave George plenty of trouble. Novak's best punches were scored in close, where he punished Panka around the body and head with jolting short hooks. Panka weighed 187½ pounds and Novak 190¼.

Patsy Henigan, a good puncher, of Clairton, was unable to solve the freakish style of Joe Marcus, formerly of Seattle and now of Braddock, in the semi-final, put on after the main go, and as a result took second money. Marcus dropped Hennigan for a nine count in the fifth. Marcus tipped the beam at 134½, while Hennigan came in at 133½.

Joe Zivic, of Lawrenceville, made his debut as a referee, and his work was highly commendable. He officiated the second and semi-final events, and Al Grayber the first and main. The judges were Jim McLaughlin and Freddie Lux. Tommy Grant and George Weidel kept time.

Cotton Supporting Bonds in Showing Way Out of Depression

For the time being, there is no disputing the leadership of the bond market in the upswing of security and commodity values. With the bond market, on the basis of some averages, in new high ground for the year and attaining rapid momentum on the advance, future speculative opportunities there may become relatively limited. However, speculative quarters see an heir-apparent in cotton. Cotton bulls—and they have become much more numerous and aggressive since the government's recent short crop estimate—think the South's commodity king can be groomed for the same role it played in 1921, leading the procession forward. There is one big obstacle, however, and that is the carry-over.

Strength and activity centered in bonds of the Baltimore and Ohio yesterday with the 4½s due March, 1933 extending their advance to a level around 76. At this price, it was pointed out, the bonds are largely discounting acceptance of the refunding plan which bankers are now working on, under terms of which holders are to be offered early payment of 50 per cent in cash and the remaining 50 per cent in new 5 per cent refunding and general mortgage bonds. The price of 76 places a valuation of $26 on each $500 par value of the new bonds. Based on a $1,000 value bond, the price would equal $52, which compares with a level of around $60 yesterday on the road's refunding 5 per cent bond due 1995.

The much discussed "nitrate cartel" which was abandoned when the huge $300,000,000 Chilean combine known as Cosach was formed last year still has a chance of formation, it is suggested in some quarters. M. G. B. Whelpley of the Chilean Nitrate Corporation, who has been endeavoring for the past six months, to line up the scattered participating interests in the Cosach for a reorganization of the enterprise through the banks is en route to Chile with tentative plans which will be presented to the authorities in that country. It is even intimated that agreements have been reached regarding the territorial distribution of nitrate products which in effect might assume the nature of a "cartel."

Fajardo Sugar Company, one of the leading Porto Rican cane sugar producers, closed its 1931 fiscal year to July 31, showing a record production of 111,333 tons. Production in the previous year was 77,994 tons. Fajardo closed its fiscal year with better earnings indicated than in any year since 1927. Making allowance for any possible variations, net earnings after charges, including depreciation were probably in excess of $600,000 or between $9 and $10 a share on 64,778 shares of common outstanding. For year to July 31, 1931, the company reported net earnings after charges of $226,010 or $3.49 a share, which included a credit of $96,000 with respect to prior year's income tax overpayments.

Although it is understood that New Haven Railroad's gross earnings for July were off about 33 per cent from July, 1931, comparing with declines of 32.2 per cent in June and 29.5 per cent in May, there has been a slight turn for the better since August 1.

Estimates for the first half of the current month show a slightly smaller percentage decline than either July or June, and the trend is viewed as more encouraging.

There has unquestionably been some revival of industrial activity in New Haven territory, numerous plants resuming after more or less extended shutdowns. Textile mills, particularly are expanding operations, and there is more activity in the shoe centers. Effects of increased production are not at once reflected in railroad traffic, and such betterment as has occurred has been since the latter part of July.

For the first time in several months, Wall street was able to find in the car loading figures, Saturday, some evidence of a quickening in the industrial pace and a moderate degree of encouragement regarding the traffic prospects over the next few weeks—a period that normally marks the crest of railroad traffic. In comparison with the preceding week, loadings of every classification showed an increase in the week of August 13, with miscellaneous freight, grain and grain products, and ore exhibiting the most substantial upturns. Carloadings failed to show the usual seasonal upturn last year and were approximately as high early in May as in any subequent period of the the year. With the comparison over the balance of this year to be made, accordingly, against a period of sub-normal volume in 1931, any further improvement over the next few weeks would be favorably accentuated.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—The Standard Oil Company of New York, has adjusted its posted service station prices throughout its New England territory. In Boston there is an advance of 1 cent a gallon.

VALLEY STEEL RATE SINKS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—What had appeared to be a promising spurt in steel mill activity for this week ended today with Republic Steel Corporation closing down four open hearth furnaces and banking a blast furnace.

With steelmaking plants of other producers also idle, steel production is at the lowest ebb in the history of the Mahoning Valley, with only four of the 68 units active. In the Shenango Valley six open hearth furnaces are active, giving the Youngstown district as a whole 10 operating units out of a total of 83.

Armco to Light Ashland Furnace

The American Rolling Mill Company will start its blast furnace at its Ashland (Ky.) plant September 1, it was reported today. Approximately 100 former employes will return to work.

STOCK MARKET RALLY MEETS RESISTANCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Stocks bulged up again to the tune of million-share-an-hour trading for a time today, but industrials encountered considerable resistance around the top levels of the recovery, reached a fortnight ago.

Apparently inability of the industrials to follow rails and utilities decisively through to new high ground dampened the bullish enthusiasm some, and after many issues had got up 1 to 5 points during the morning, several receded 1 to 2 from the best around midday, as the pace of trading slackened. The list seemed to be starting up again, in the fourth hour, however.

Buying again poured into the market from many cities and abroad, particularly during the early hours, although large foreign investment trusts that bought extensively in this market some weeks ago were said virtually to have completed their accumulation here.

Professional bullish activity was again said to be extensive, particularly in some of the lower-priced issues. Brokerage quarters were busy with gossip of "pools" and "jiggles."

Continued strength of bonds, and firmness of some of the commodities, helped the bull cause in shares. Fresh news of a character to influence the market was again meagre, although some usually well-informed quarters insisted that September would see a substantial quickening in steel production, substantial enough to justify much of the recent bullishness. Saturday's freight carloading figures were awaited with keen interest. Loadings should increase from early August up to a seasonal peak in October. The report for the week ended August 13 showed a gain which looked as though the seasonal movement was starting. What the report for the week ended August 20 will show remains to be seen.

Bullish activity in coppers was predicted on gossip of higher prices. Foreign buying was said to be a little better. Lead prices were advanced 1-10 of a cent a pound, and bar silver was again firm. Zinc was unchanged. North American reflected the announcement that bank loans of some $9,000,000 had been paid off.

EXPORT COPPER BUYING UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Buying of copper in the export market has increased substantially as compared with the last week or so, the copper trade heard today. Prices have been to levels equivalent to 5.40-5.50 cents, against a previously ruling level of 5.40 cents.

There is little change in the domestic market. Demand is quiet with the price unchanged at 5⅜ to 5½ cents delivered to the end of 1932 and 5½ cents for the first quarter 1933 delivery.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—In fairly active trading on the National Metal Exchange this forenoon silver futures pushed ahead 20 to 135 points. Strength was centered chiefly in the nearby positions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The American Smelting and Refining Company has advanced the price of lead 10 points to 3.40 cents a pound.

GRAIN PRICES RULE HIGHER

CHICAGO, Aug. 23. — Grains borrowed strength from the stock market in early dealings today, and prices averaged higher. Commission houses lined up on the buying side and found offerings light until the December delivery touched 55 cents a bushel, where resting orders to sell halted the advance. Wheat started ½-1 cent higher and held around the best figures. Corn was ¼-½ higher in sympathy with wheat, and also held firm.

Strength in stocks and cotton was reflected in wheat and corn. Corn and oats followed closely the action of wheat.

Provisions were quiet and steady.

COTTON PICKUP MAY HERALD RECOVERY

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The textile industry was at the vanguard of the business recovery in 1921-22, and for that reason there is a disposition to assess with unusual care the meaning of the current pickup in the cotton trade.

The chief executive of a leading cotton textile concern, with mills in both New England and the south, in commenting on the significance of the flurry in the trade, told me:

Mr. Rukeyser

"I think it is largely based on the statistical position of the industry. You probably see the monthly reports of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants, showing the carded cotton cloth situation. The last one, as of August 15, giving the statistics for the month of July, shows that on a production of 141,672,000 square yards, there were sales of 222,616,000 square yards, equal to 157 per cent; that the total stocks on hand were 281,249,000 square yards, equal to about two months' production at July's rate of production, but as normal production, as shown in December, 1931, and January, 1932, is approximately 500,000,000 square yards, this stock is equivalent to about two weeks' production and consumption in normal times, so that it is in reality a small stock.

"In addition to this, while there are no definite statistics about it, it is well known that the stocks in the hands of wholesale and retail merchants are abnormally low. A similar situation exists in the fine yarn division where the sales for the five weeks ending August 6 were 164 per cent of production, and the stocks on hand were 1,537,000 pieces, as compared with a normal production at full time of 375,000 pieces, equal to only one month's production.

"There always has to be a considerable supply of goods on hand at the mills which it is safe to say under no conditions would be less than an average of two weeks' production, if not more than that. The situation in general, therefore, is that from lack of activity on the part of their customers, the mills have been running at a very low percentage of activity with the result that in substantially all classes of cotton mercandise the supply is very low."

Brazil Revolution Upsets Movement of World's Coffee Supply

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The coffee pot has been warm, if not boiling, recently.

The reason is a revolution in Brazil which has closed the world's most important coffee port of Sao Paulo and shut off a large supply of coffee beans which usually come to this country in large shipments.

Since the Brazilian revolt started a few weeks ago, the price of raw bean coffee here has advanced to around 12 cents a pound against a quotation of 9¾ cents August 1. Coffee futures have also soared.

Statistics of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange show the United States consumes in the neighborhood of 12,000,000 bags of raw coffee beans annually and more than half this total comes from Brazil.

U. S. Supply Cut Down

The extent of the coffee havoc wrought by the Brazilian upheaval is shown by the fact that Brazilian stocks in the United States now aggregate only some 318,000 bags of 132 pounds each, compared with 1,176,000 bags at this time in 1931. This week, in addition to the Brazilian coffee, there were on hand about 350,000 bags of "mild" beans obtained from Colombia, East Indies and other countries. Stocks of "mild" afloat, as it is termed—not in warehouses—consisted of some 128,000 bags, against 340,000 bags a year ago.

Farm Board Sale Curbed

The Farm Board, or its subsidiary, the Grain Stabilization Corporation, made a deal with Brazil a year ago whereby it traded 25,000,000 bushels of American wheat for 1,050,000 bags of Brazilian coffee. This coffee is now in storage in New York.

The big trade, however, had a string to it. The Brazilians induced the Farm Board to agree to release the coffee in installments. Under this agreement 62,500 bags will be put on the market next month and similar amounts each month thereafter. It is figured the Farm Board now has a paper profit of more than $4,000,000 on its trade.

Forbes

U. S. Able to Hold Own in World Trade

By B. C. FORBES

The agreements finally patched up by the different countries comprising the British empire will not ruin America. Their intent was and is, of course, to decrease our shade of world trade and to increase the British share. We would have more justification for feeling resentful if we ourselves hadn't been guilty of tariff monstrosities levelled against Britain and all the rest of the world.

Undoubtedly the new discriminatory levies will somewhat curtail American exports, at least temporarily, but this resourceful country should find ways and means to protect its interests. If the United Kingdom or Canada or any other British dominion insists upon denying the United States the traditional "most favored nation" trade facilities, then it may be found advisable and feasible for the United States and other important nations to make agreements designed to stimulate their commerce with one another.

One-sided trade pacts don't, and in the very nature of things, can't last.

Reflect, how unhappily the Smoot-Hawley tariff has worked out. It was the embodiment, not of statesmanship, but of selfishness, of log-rolling, of backdoor and side-door and sub-cellar mercenary intrigue. It slapped other nations in the face.

And its authors expressed amazement and indignation when the slapped voiced resentment and began to hit back!

THAT THE WHOLE world is suffering from the multiple shackles fastened on international trade cannot be questioned. The United States was admittedly a prime instigator of high tariffs. They worked beautifully so long as other nations didn't act similarly. But our international trade status has now undergone two fundamental changes.

First, the rest of the world has learned how to play the tariff game quite as well as we know how to play it, and we are not finding pleasant the liberal doses of our own medicine other nations are now forcing upon us.

Second, whereas we were a debtor nation, we have now become a creditor nation on a colossal scale. This means that we cannot possibly continue indefinitely to receive foreign debt payments, or even the interest on debts or investments, unless we accept products or services. If every dollar of gold held abroad were shipped to us, our credits abroad wouldn't be half paid.

BOTH OUR exports and our imports have fallen to the slimmest figures in many years. Oldtime customers are showing most unmistakably that they don't love us.

Obviously, the only way out is for us to do everything practicable to change this antagonistic mental attitude and to make it profitable for others to deal with us.

THE IMPENDING international conference in London should make history.

There should be frank recognition all round that commerce is based on give-and-take, that the seller must win the goodwill of the potential buyer, and that the human race can only suffer if all nations make it more and more impossible to enjoy normal, natural, healthy commercial intercourse. Since retaliation is proving ruinous, why not substitute reciprocity?

HAPPILY, THE United States is in a better position than any other country to hold its own in any international economic conference, seeing that we are more nearly self-sustaining than any other land, and that we lead the world in wealth and in industrial ingenuity.

We can and should demand an absolutely square deal from every country and from the United Kingdom and all the British dominions combined. We need not enter the parley hat-in-hand as obsequious, licked suppliants.

On the other hand, we need not enter with a chip on our shoulder.

ALL TRADE, all industry, all business, consists of giving something in exchange for something else. Exchanging should be made easy, not difficult or impossible.

Hardships Faced by Val and Mother Again When Jim Returns to Sea

afraid, but Val's life was going to be different.

Somewhere in the back of her head she wrestled with forebodings . . . Life wasn't kind to women like her . . . she knew that. But she was not like the others . . . she. Millie Macfarlane, was different . . . Life would have to treat her differently . . . it would! It would!

Jim Atkinson had given up the sea. Given it up to be near her. He had some sort of waterfront job that kept him at the piers all day and occasionally took him north for a few days or a week at a time. Much as she missed him when he was gone, Millie was glad of the brief absences. They gave her the chance to freshen her wardrobe, to press and clean and make over.

AT HER LOVELIEST

She must have been at the height of her loveliness that year. Somewhere in the twenties, with a full, almost voluptuous figure, fine eyes under delicate, dark wings of eyebrows, and a quantity of soft blueblack hair that she wore in a loose coil at the nape of her white, graceful neck.

There was a sort of glamour about her, almost a radiance. A sparkle and a lilt, an air of half wistful gaiety and sometimes a sudden hushed waiting—as if she were listening—waiting—waiting for the cold winds of reality that would come some day to blow her dream of love, her fragrant, full-blown beauty away.

She wouldn't have admitted it, least of all to herself, but in her heart she must have known it could not last. Already she had got into correspondence with her dead husband's sister, Julia Macfarlane.

"I just wanted to keep in touch with you, in case anything should happen to me," she wrote. "Fred would have wanted Val to go to you in case anything happened to me."

"Miss Julia Macfarlane."

"Your aunt," Millie explained, expecting questions. But Val was not interested in aunts. She had Millie and Jim. Why look further?

The apartment they lived in now was large and sunny. They got it cheap because it was old and run down. But over the tawdriness, over the shabbiness and cheapness, Millie threw her magic mantle of romance.

And if the stardust was but tinsel, and the lilies of love were rooted in slime, how was a little girl like Val to know? she thought it was perfect, and years later, when she had her own apartment, she labored innocently and a little clumsily to make it like her memory of Millie's.

JIM LEAVES AGAIN

The big rooms were high ceilinged and sunny. The jade and ivory and silk, souvenirs of Jim's seagoing days, lent a deceptive air of elegance. Pots of pansies, five-fingered fern and waxy, pink begonias bloomed on the window sills. Millie's limp teagowns gave place to crisp, much ruffled dimities that she ironed herself, patiently, in the kitchen. Millie was spending a lot of time in the kitchen.

"They say the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," she told Val, laughing, "but don't you ever believe it. Still, there may be something in it, and you can't afford to miss a bet when you're in love—remember that, Valentine Macfarlane!"

Queer that Val should remember it all so vividly. All the love and laughter of that first happy year. All the funny little happenings. Millie, waking her at midnight to taste the oyster-loaf, all brown and buttery, that Jim went down to get. Jim scrambling eggs and clams in a big black frying pan on the kitchen stove, waiting on Millie as if she were a queen. And then Jim going away. Going back to the sea.

After that things weren't so clear. Val could never recall it surely. Things happened too fast, she was too bewildered, too unhappy because Millie was sad. Toward the end it was just a nightmare.

VALENTINE FRIGHTENED

Millie cried terribly when Jim went.

"I can't be brave and send you away with a smile," she told him. "I'm not that kind. I'm weak. I can't stand it. Loneliness . . . you don't know what it does to me. I go crazy. Crazy! Do you hear? Oh, Jim, if you love me, don't leave me. Let the ship go—oh, my dear, don't don't leave me alone!"

Val had been afraid. Afraid of Millie's streaked, working face. Afraid of something wild and abandoned about the way she ran after him, crying and clutching at his blue coat. Millie shouldn't do that . . . it wasn't . . . it wasn't nice . . .

But Jim wasn't afraid.

"You do love me, don't you, girl?" he cried, coming back and holding her close to his heart. "And I know you'll be waiting. I've no fear. Goodbye and God bless you . . . Goodbye, little Valentine, take care of my Millie!"

For the second time in Val's memory, the sea captain's blue eyes were wet.

And then he was gone, and somehow things went on without him. Millie's brief domesticity was over. Dust settled on the black screen with the golden dragon. The ivory Buddha and the jade lotus flower took on the same grimy hue. Dishes piled up in the kitchen sink. Millie yawned through one paper backed novel after another and never got up until noon.

Val was a day scholar at the sister's school now. Lessons and mild games with the other black-frocked little girls. The click of beads. The thin, sweet voice of Sister Anastasia whom she loved. Order and peace and quiet.

Then back to the flat and Millie. Millie, in one of her lovely tea-gowns, stretched out on the couch, reading.

"Millie, Sister Anastasia says—"

Sister Anastasia said.

"Is that you, Val?" she would murmur. "Is it 4 o'clock already?"

"Yes—half past, Millie, Sister Anastasia says—"

"Well, never mind that now. I'll read you something instead. This is a wonderful book. The girl's husband is jealous, but she's innocent, really. It makes me think of when I was first married, and . . . well, I suppose you're too you—"

"Oh, no, Millie! No!"

"Anyway, he suspects her, and . . . well, I might as well read it—"

Whole afternoons slipped by in a golden fog, with Millie reading and Val thirstily drinking in the flowery words. Millie would read on in her rich, velvety voice till it was time to turn on the lights and telephone the chop house on the corner to send over a tray for two.

Sister Anastasia, Millie. The yellow backed novels whose heroines were always Millie to Val, and the heroes tall, dark-headed replicas of Millie's Jim. These filled Val's days, and when it was all over they were clearest in her mind.

The rest was just a blur. Strange people swarming into the sunny, flower-filled rooms where nobody but the sea captain had ever come before. Noisy, laughing, loud-talking people. Ladies with fur coats and pretty dresses, who called her "darling child" and patted her head, and then forgot all about her. Men with diamond rings and heavy watch chains.

The end came so suddenly, so cruelly. Millie kissing her awake in the dark of the night. Making her dress, though her head felt all hollow, and her eyes wouldn't stay open.

"Shh!" Millie cautioned, "Shh!"

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Overhears Madge's Talk With Hugh

At Hugh Grantland's request not to move for a little, and to look at him, I regretted the impulse that had led me to bring Baby Faith downstairs in order to grant his plea to see her. I had not expected silliness like this from Hugh. I told myself with irritation, wondering if I had let myself in for a sentimental scene.

But as I raised my eyes to his, I saw with compunction that there was in his face a reverential, adoring admiration that any woman would be flattered to receive. Instinctively I knew that it had in it so little earthly feeling that no person save an excessively captious one could possibly object to it.

"It is this way I want to remember you," he said at last, "no matter how many times I see you otherwise. Tell me; do you think your husband would be very angry if I snapped just one little picture of you as you are now?"

"I do not think he will be angry," I said mendaciously. "I shall be very glad to know that you have the snapshot."

"Just as you are, please," he said. "I want to take more than one, so that I will be sure of one good one."

He snapped the six in the roll before he unloaded the camera and put the roll away for safe keeping. Then he came over to me and drew out a chair.

"Forgive me for keeping you standing," he said, "but I did so want that pose of you with the child in your arms. I haven't tired you?"

A LONELY MAN

"No, you haven't tired me," I said, "but I mustn't remain down here very long. This young lady is on her best behavior just now, but I am not certain how long the mood will last. And I don't want her to spoil a good first impression by a tantrum."

He was not listening to me. I saw that. His eyes were fixed upon my small daughter, and he moved cautiously toward her and put his forefinger into one of the tiny hands that were beating the air in baby fashion. Instinctively the wee fingers closed upon his, and there came over his face the fatuous, blissful expression common to a genuine child lover when a baby clasps his finger.

Suddenly I visioned the loneliness of the man, who, so eminently fitted for fatherhood, was spending his life in the wild places of the earth. I pretended to rearrange my baby's dress, that he might not see how close behind my eyelids were hot tears for him.

"The darling!" he said softly. "Do you suppose—this work of mine is pretty well over, as you will hear later on in the day, and I shall be able to spend more time in my own country—will it be possible for me to see her once in awhile? I will be so careful not to offend; but it would mean so much to me. You do not know."

DICKY ANGERED

Into my mind there came the remembrance of words Dickens of Sydney Carton, that immortal characterization of hopeless, self-sacrificing love, to the effect that when a man had loved a woman hopelessly and selflessly, there was always a special bond between him and her children. I did not know what unpleasantness I might be braving from Dicky's undoubted jealousy of this man, but common decency and gratitude for the devotion of years, asking nothing and so often signally shown in service to me and mine, made no answer possible than the one I gave him.

"What a ridiculous question!" I said, feeling that I must keep to a light touch or be smothered by my own remorseful pity for him. "Of course you shall see her, and all of us. Junior never has forgotten you. He will be so glad to see you. And that reminds me. He and his small cousin, Roderick, who is also our boy now, will be awake and clamoring to know where I am. I really must go now."

"Of course." He stooped and raised Faith's tiny hand, twined around his finger, to his lips, and then released it.

"I haven't words to thank you," he said fervently. "You can't imagine what this has meant to me."

He stood almost in the attitude of a soldier at attention as I went from the veranda into the house. I only hoped he did not hear the gasp of dismay I gave at the sight of Dicky's blackly frowning face, as he advanced along the hall toward me.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Members of the Camera-phone Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club who attended the meeting Saturday enjoyed more than an hour of fun and entertainment before the regular show went on.

One of the stunts that brought many a laugh from the youngsters was the pie-eating contest held for the boys. Last week Hubert and Robert Wilson won the ice cream cone and watermelon eating contest and they assured Manager Earl Roeser that if he would have a pie-eating contest they would show the other youngsters how to eat pie. Well, Manager Roeser held the pie-eating contest, but the Wilson boys were not present, so little Jack Kaystandis ran away with first honors.

ENTERTAIN MEMBERS

Mary Catherine Schaffner sang and danced as did Lorraine Tedesio. Henry La Pertche, the Grand Jester, acted as Master of Ceremonies and led all the members in community singing. Just a few of the songs were: "Snuggle on Your Shoulder," "Diana," "Now's the Time to Fall in Love" and "Stardust.'

Remember, boys and girls, Friday is going to be the big day at Kennywood Park, for all children under 16. On this day Lucky Bucks clipped from the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph will be just as good as gold. You'll be able to ride on most any amusement device in the park for 10 Lucky Bucks.

The Sun-Telegraph has also made arrangements with the Pittsburgh Railways Company to issue a special street car pass for this day only which will take you to Kennywood Park and return for 15 cents. These passes will be on sale in all sections of the city tomorrow.

STAMP COLLECTING

We wonder how many members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club have joined the Sunday Sun-Telegraph Stamp Collectors. It is known that several members are enthusiastic stamp collectors but the others do not know what they are missing by not getting into this popular pastime.

Stamp collecting is more than a hobby. It is a teacher about everything—all over the world. Stamps acquaint you with history, gegraphy, strange peoples and their countries, of engraving and of art and printing. Stamps tell you about important men and events and places in every nook and corner of the world. They carry fascinating pictures, and there's a story behind every picture.

CACHETS POPULAR

There's lots of fun and entertainment in collecting stamps. And just now commemorative cachets are a popular fad.

Every Sunday in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph there is a column of stamp news. And there is a club known as the Sun-Telegraph Stamp Collectors. Members of the Junior Komic Club can join the Stamp Collectors. The Sunday Sun-Telegraph will tell you how you can get a membership card with your own name on it and also give you a lot of information about stamp collecting.

If you are not a collector, now is the time to start.

(News Item)

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The mental twist which makes a man a capitalist instead of an artist was explained to the American Association for the Advancement of Science tonight by Dr. Edward L. Thorndike, of Columbia University. The capitalist, he said, is actuated by the desire to be well thought of. His choice of capitalism is fixed by the fact he has a natural flair for business. The artist differs in having a natural bent for expression of beauty.

Economist Sneezes At World Tempest

It's about time that America listens to her economists—the cloistered men, forgotten and ignored, who first thought of colored pin maps. They stand ready to sneeze at the gale of adversity which is whistling through the world's thin breeches. Among the economists, none is more confident than Prof. J. Wilmot Applethwacker, who estimates that we can increase currency, and back it up with gold. To get the gold, he advocates diving off bridges and recovering cast-off wedding rings.

A Strange Thing Is Money

It Is Real Today, NOTHING Tomorrow.

A $500 CONFEDERATE NOTE ON EXHIBITION IN THE CONFEDERATE MUSEUM AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

On this note, issued by the Confederate States, when they were at war with the Northern States, you may read in dim letters "Two years after the ratification of a treaty of peace between the Confederate States and the United States, the Confederate States will pay to the bearer on demand five hundred dollars." This note is dated Richmond, February 17th, 1864, and signed by representatives of the Confederate States.

If the Southern States had defeated the North, this bill would have been worth $500. But the North won, and the bill was worth nothing.

War, and its chances, have much to do with money and its value. The Germans learned that when their marks became worth less than one fifty millionth part of a cent. The French know it now with their franc that used to be worth 19 cents, worth now less than 4 cents. And the English know it with their pound far below its old value, no longer on a gold basis.

Here in America we know in a queer way that war makes a difference in money, with our dollars more numerous than ever before, but harder to get, the value of man's labor and of what he produces, has fallen, as the dollar has "risen in value."

The note printed above is reproduced by permission of the American Bank and Trust Company of Richmond, Va., which reprints the old bill, with some verses that were found written on the back of it. These verses will appeal in a curious kind of way to some of the veterans of our war. The verses follow:

Representing nothing on God's earth now,
And naught in the waters below it—
A pledge of a nation that passed away—
Keep it, dear friend, and show it.

Too poor to possess the precious coin,
And too much of a stranger to borrow,
We issued today, our "promise to pay,"
And hoped to redeem on the morrow.

The days rolled on, and weeks became years,
But our coffers were empty still;
Coin was so scarce that the treasury quaked
If a dollar should drop in the till.

But the faith that was in us was strong indeed,
And our poverty well we discerned,
And this poor little check represents the pay
That our suffering veterans earned.

But "our boys" thought little of price or pay,
Or of bills that were overdue;
We knew it bought our bread today—
'Twas the best our poor, poor country could do.

Keep it—it tells all our history over,
From the birth of our dream 'til its last;
Modest and born of the angel, Hope,
Like our hope of success, it has passed.

Money is a mystery, depending on confidence, on prosperity, on VICTORY IN WAR, on confidence in those that issue the money, on the gold or silver back of it.

Yet gold and silver have comparatively little to do with it.

All the monetary gold in the world would not pay the income of the United States for three months even in these dull times, would not pay the savings bank deposits of the citizens of the United States.

No man knows what money really is, what may happen to it when it may become as worthless as those Confederate notes, representing nothing on God's earth now.

Possibly this country has the confidence of the world, it has more wealth than any other, possesses intelligence, which is more important than gold or silver or bank notes; it has its share of courage. It possesses of silver and gold a vast treasure; no other nation has so much gold.

Fortunate among the nations, this country has no cause for complaint.

Studying the Stars

Popular Interest in Astronomy Is Increasing in Pittsburgh, and Deserves Encouragement.

Since Dr. Heber D. Curtis resigned as director of the Allegheny Observatory the study of eclipses has not played so prominent a part in the reports of the observatory's work. Eclipses were a specialty with Dr. Curtis and he went again and again to remote parts of the world to observe them.

On the other hand, popular interest in eclipses has increased, as shown by the plans of a number of amateur astronomers in Pittsburgh to go to Fryeburg, Me., to observe the total eclipse of the sun on August 31. This popular interest is not confined to eclipses, however, but extends to all astronomical phenomena.

It is cause for pride and gratification that so many young people in Pittsburgh are studying the stars as an intellectual recreation. It is a testimonial to a high grade of intelligence, for mental ability of no mean order is required for clear understanding of the nature and movements of the sun, planets, stars and other heavenly bodies.

Some of these young people have been ingenious enough to make their own telescopes and photographic equipment.

Popular interest in astronomy is fostered by the Allegheny Observatory's soirees, which are free to the people, though application for admission must be made well in advance, for the number admitted on any one night is limited, so that all may have a chance to use the big telescope.

The Astronomical Section of the Academy of Science and Art is also doing good work in inculcating appreciation of the pleasure to be found in studying the stars.

This popular interest in astronomy deserves every encouragement, for "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

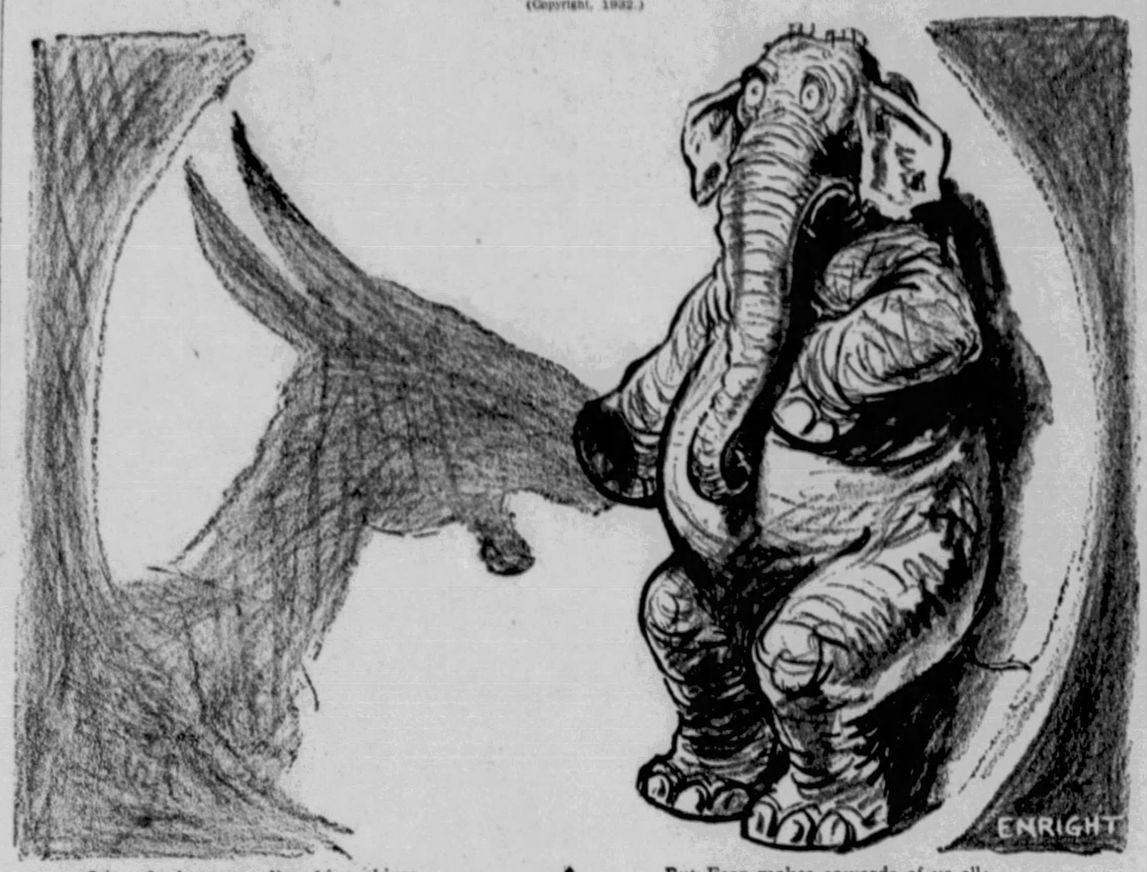
Does He Perceive Another Eclipse?

(Copyright, 1932.)



Grim shadows are disturbing things
When ghostly silhouettes abound;
Eclipses, too, must have their flings
And cast their gloomy shapes around,
Despite the Ballyhoo who sings
That, fundamentally, we're sound!

But Fear makes cowards of us all;
A goblin through the fancy trips
And backs us up against a wall!
In politics there may be slips—
When voters have their say this Fall—
Between the "cup" and the eclipse!

Sweet Dreams—Bitter Realities

Love is a state of mental intoxication, which makes a man smile affectionately at the taxi-driver, offer him a drink, and then spend five minutes trying to fit his desk key into the front door.

Sensible, modest girls may be in the minority, nowadays; but there are more than enough of them to go round among the men who have the intelligence to pick that kind of girl to fall in love with.

Many a girl, like the persistent housefly or the buzzing mosquito, gets "swatted," just for hanging around and boring a man with too much personal attention.

Robbing the cradle for husbands appears to be the latest fad in smart circles. Not content with having pajamas, cigarets and the ballot, woman seems to be reaching out for man's last special privilege—the right to make a fool of herself.

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELS

When the Moon Rose

When the moon rose my love's hand lay in mine;
I drew her closer in my fond embrace.
Ah, never was there night so near divine,
And never moonlight touched so fair a face!
The world grew dim and very far away;
We two alone were all in all, that hour
When circumstance had lost its wonted sway,

By threats of life unmoved and unalarmed,
We saw our dreams fresh-flowered for us to clasp.
We knew no fear, against all evil armed;
We knew no hope: our heaven was in our grasp!
When the moon rose I held my loved one's hand
And we two dwelt in an enchanted land.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Manhattan hotels, like great ocean liners, attract distinct clienteles. In other days, the Knickerbocker, Astor and Claridge were the hub of the theatrical whirl. Today, it has moved to the St. Moritz and the Essex on Central Park South.

The moving picture colony—actors, directors and scenarists from Hollywood—put up mostly at the Warwick on Sixth avenue. The Ritz long has been the favored inn of London bankers and European titles, the preponderance of the monocled making the word "ritz" a symbol of swank.

The Plaza and the Vanderbilt are rendezvous of the southern aristocracy. The spacious old Murray Hill houses Philadelphia blue-bloods and the elderly retired from all sections. The Roosevelt is a middle and southwest center, and folk from China, especially Shanghai, gather at the Biltmore.

For many years, visiting ballplayers have lodged at the Ansonia, on upper Broadway. Big manufacturers register at the Commodore. The Pennsylvania is, for some reason, a hide-away for authors in the throes of creative effort. Ring Lardner and Octavus Roy Cohen have turned out stories there.

The Brevoort is the now-and-then home of Montague Glass and Sinclair Lewis. Will H. Hays maintains an apartment at the new Waldorf. The Douglas Fairbankses, Ethel Barrymore and Ina Claire are regulars at the Algonquin. And that pathetic new spire is known as "The Hotel Where Nobody Stops."

A boy-about-town, edgy from a prolonged whack at the bottle, dropped in—of all places—at a movie, exploiting a ferocious animal picture, for a little snooze. After watching a tiger in the coil of a python for a few moments, he went right out of there. As he blinked in the flood of outside sunshine, Mickey Nielan came up from behind, grabbed him by the leg, and simulated a tiger roar. The victim gave a despairing screech and plopped over, in the manner of a stiff clothing dummy, into a dead faint. He came to in a cab with Mickey fanning him.

Destiny decanted a lavender-tinted envelope, bearing a pontifical seal and a startling crest, on my desk, just now. An unsigned note in an aristocratically angular hand reads: "If you will meet me in the foyer of the ——— hotel at 6 this evening, wearing a white carnation, I will have news of vast importance to you. You will know me when I approach and say 'The Princess is speaking'!" It is rather discouraging to realize one even looks like some fool who would fall for such a gag!

Yet, I have had some good chuckles conjuring up an idiotic situation. I have pictured myself, all flossed up and sporting the lapel insignia, sauntering into the hotel at the proper time and beholding in the twitch of expectancy Irvin Cobb, Floyd Gibbons, Harry Silvey, Gene Crawley and others—all wearing white carnations.

Back in the days of two-garage cars, Weare Holbrook knew a Park avenue matron whose life was symbolized by the combination lorgnette-and-riding crop, which she carried along the bridle path. Her town house was the sort with a solarium, lunarium and a library of incunabula. The other day, the author saw her cashiering in a modest side street tea room. "Until the winter of 1929," she explained, "I thought crash was merely something out of which people made towels."

A revue producer wires me to attempt a skit for a proposed production. "You might do a skit on the columnists," he flatters. The only thing which occurs in the general columnar decadence is a scene of miasmatic gloom. Eventually, out of the shadows, the mouth of a sewer is discernible. A rat sticks his head out. The producer can go on from there.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There have been many martyrs in human history—brave souls who gave their lives for others, who endured hardship and sacrifice, and even the final agony with a smile on their lips and a shining vision in their eyes.

All honor to such martyrs! Whatever their suffering, it was worth while, for it made life richer for them and for all who knew them.

BUT FOR EVERY SMILING MARTYR, THERE ARE TEN THOUSAND SNIFFLING ONES. DO THEY, TOO, DESERVE HONOR?

Is sacrifice "noble" if it results in bitter, empty lives—or selfish, weak lives?

Should miserable martyrdoms be encouraged?

I'm wondering. Thinking of a woman I know.

She's middle aged now—a stiff, dry woman with dull eyes and faded lips. Hard to realize that young dreams and rebellions once burned and misted behind her wrinkled eyelids—

But from the first there seemed no chance. She was the oldest in a family of seven. When she was 6, she was already "little mother" to tinier ones. At 12 her work was indispensable to the worn-out mother. Her father would have taken her from school then, had not she not pleaded so frantically to stay. So she was allowed to finish the grades. Further than that, she never went.

When she was 14, she was working in the family store. Things were picking up, after the long, harassed years of child bearing. Money was coming in. The girl worked hard—at all hours. If she had been working for any other concern, she would have earned big wages. But this was "family money." Out of it she had scraps of meals, snatched between chores — scraps of sleep — scraps of clothes.

In the meantime, the other children were going on through school, going out into good positions, making real money for themselves, getting married. When they were in school, this oldest girl had to work doubly hard to meet their expenses. Had to keep on working "until they got their start."

When they began bringing their babies back to her to tend, she rebelled. Late as it was, she had a right to a life of her own—but what sort of a life could it be? She was over 30. Weary and faded—who'd want her?

The man who finally asked her was honest enough, but poor and dull almost beyond endurance. Still, that was better than no life at all. So she went. And took her parent's bitterness as a dowery! And the scorching rebukes of her sisters and brothers!

"How can you leave poppa and momma like that!" they cried.

"But you left!" she answered bitterly. "And now you have your good educations—your nice homes and cars—your fine friends. And you have given nothing to the old folks—"

"But that is different," they cried. "We can't give. We must look after our families. But you haven't any family. And poppa and momma depended on you—"

So now she's middle aged, faded—and bitter. She has had no romance in life. No adventure. And she blames her family.

Whose duty was it to defend her life—theirs or her own?

Whose fault is it if that life was wasted—theirs or her own?

And is there anything beautiful about such senseless sacrifice? Is it ever appreciated? Should it be appreciated?

DOES THE HUMAN BEING WHO WON'T RESPECT HIS OWN RIGHTS, DESERVE ANY?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Hot weather is not so bad as fussing and fuming over it.

Your emotions very often increase the temperature of your body.

Be philosophical and accept the heat as something to be expected.

There is a time for everything, be easy about it.

To perspire is good for you.

You allow your thoughts to center on the weather.

Because it may be difficult for you to concentrate on anything else you adopt the subject of the weather.

And the more you think the hotter you get.

Take summer as a matter of course and you will not be displeased by its hottest days.

Half the time you would not consider it too warm but for the thermometer and having your attention called to it.

The Liberals Must "Put Up or Shut Up"

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Hoover strategists are having no end of embarrassment in the prohibition planks of the two platforms, and there is more of the grotesque than of the convincing in the gyrations of these distressed people. Never has an issue been more clearly drawn. Never have people of rudimentary intelligence understood it so thoroughly. And that makes it very embarrassing to Mr. Hoover in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Illinois. The strategy is now out. The Hoover managers, under his leadership, have gone too far gracefully to renounce their act in their own convention. They cannot possibly say to the people of these states that they favor modification and repeal—for that was the issue when Ogden Mills led the fight for Mr. Hoover in the convention which resulted in a victory for the prohibitionists which has arrayed Bishop Cannon with them along with the rest of the Anti-Saloon League.

What, then, can be done? Just one thing. The people must be persuaded, if possible, that the Democrats did not mean what they said in their platform when, as a party, they took their stand for repeal and for modification as soon as the voters have given them a mandate at the polls.

November Vote Real Dry Test

The first move to array the wets with the drys in these important states came when Hoover organs began to insist that the declaration for "immediate" modification meant modification during the present session of Congress. Of course, the party in 1932 could not pledge men elected in 1930. The platform adopted with so much enthusiasm, and by such an overwhelming majority in the Democratic convention, applies to the policy of the party, provided the people give it a mandate at the polls in November.

A Correspondent Hoover's Intimate

Now we have a new tack. Mark Sullivan is a correspondent, but not just "a correspondent." He is one of the most intimate friends and advisers of Mr. Hoover. Almost any Monday morning we may read in the Washington items that Mr. Sullivan was one of the week-end guests at Rapidan. At these political conclaves at the fishing camp, where there is more fishing for votes than for fish, the strategy is discussed. And when Mr. Sullivan writes as a correspondent everyone knows that he is following out the strategy determined upon in a Hoover political conference.

Thus, when he writes for the purpose of persuading the anti-prohibitionists in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts that the Democrats have no thought of carrying out their platform pledge if they get a mandate from the people, we know the policy of the campaign. He dare not write that Mr. Hoover will follow the course outlined in the Democratic platform, for that would alienate the Anti-Saloon League, on which so much reliance is placed.

Democrats Plan To Fulfil Pledge

Not only is there a party pledge, most solemnly and deliberately made, but Mr. Roosevelt has accepted as his own policy outlined and pledged. "From this hour," he said, the 18th Amendment is doomed."

Any political party so plainly pledged to a policy that would fail to carry it out after receiving a clear mandate from the people at the polls would go down to crushing defeat in the very next election.

But there is no disposition to renounce the pledge.

For more than a year there has been an amazing rising against the prohibition laws. This is as true in the South and West as in the North. It has affected members of Congress from the first two sections as much as from the last. These men, close to government, knowing the mockery and the appalling cost of enforcement that does not enforce, resenting the taxation immunity accorded one of the most lucrative industries in the land, have been convinced that the "noble experiment" has failed.

But they are politicians and hesitate, without a clear mandate from the voters, to act in accordance with their convictions. Any one familiar with the gossip of the cloak rooms knows this is true.

If the Democrats win on this issue they have the justification so many of them seek.

Issue Seems Clear Cut

But with the issue clear cut, unmistakable as it is, the re-election of Mr. Hoover would be a plain indication that the country still wants the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act. The timid, who are, at heart, against prohibition, would again take to their tents and vote against modification or repeal.

And under our form of government, they would be justified in refusing to vote a change. For the people would have spoken against a change—and with the politician the voice of the voter is the voice of God.

That is the reason Bishop Cannon is for Mr. Hoover.

And the reason the head of the Anti-Saloon League in New York is out for Mr. Hoover.

They know that if Mr. Hoover, running on the platform he dictated, is re-elected, the noble experiment is safe for a long while yet.

'Leave It To Hoover'—They Did!

Are the anti-prohibitionists less intelligent in the exercise of the privileges of citizenship? A great many people came to this conclusion four years ago, but there were extenuations. In New York, and other wet sections the bets were told in whispers that Mr. Hoover's pledge of a commission to investigate was just his way of getting rid of prohibition. "Just leave it to Hoover," they whispered, with a wink. And they did. The result is known—even to the misrepresentation of the findings of the commission at the instance of the White House.

Wets Put Up Strong Battle

So this year it was decided to have the issue definitely made in the Republican Convention. The anti-prohibitionists put up a magnificent fight; and, but for the active interference of Mr. Hoover, an anti-prohibition plank would have been written and adopted.

It was defeated, and the Administration plank which Nicholas Murray Butler calls "dishonest" was forced in under the leadership of Ogden Mills, of New York, acting in defiance of the instruction of his own delegation.

In the Democratic Convention the sentiment was overwhelmingly for repeal and modification, and a plank in conformity with that sentiment was adopted by a tremendous majority.

When in history has an issue between two platforms and candidates been more unmistakably drawn?

The time has therefore come for the liberals in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Illinois to either "put up or shut up."

If, with the issue so plain, they vote with the drys this year, there are a great many of us who will make it a point to accept the verdict of the country and vote with the drys in the future.
